G. Collingwood, 2005 This is the long awaited publication of a set of writings by the British philosopher historian and archaeologist R G Collingwood on critical anthropological and cultural themes only hinted at in his previously available work At the centre of the book are six chapters of a study of folktale and magic composed by Collingwood in the mid 1930s and intended for development into a book Here Collingwood applies the principles of his philosophy of history to problems in the long term evolution of human society and culture This is preceded in Part I by a range of contextualizing material on such topics as the relations between music and poetry the nature of language the value of Jane Austen's novels the philosophy of art and the relations between aesthetic theory and artistic practice Part III of the volume consists of two essays one on the relationship between art and mechanized civilization and the second written in 1931 on the collapse of human values and civilization leading up to the catastrophe of armed conflict These offer a devastating analysis of the consequences that attend the desertion of liberal principles indeed of all politics as such in the ultimate self annihilation of military conquest The volume opens with three substantial introductory essays by the editors authorities in the fields of critical and literary history social and cultural anthropology and the philosophy of history and the history of ideas they provide their explanatory and contextual notes to guide the reader through the texts The Philosophy of Enchantment brings hitherto unrecognized areas of Collingwood's achievement to light and demonstrates the broad range of Collingwood's intellectual engagements their integration and their relevance to current areas of debate in the fields of philosophy cultural studies social and literary history and anthropology

Theoretical Issues in Literary History David Perkins, 1991

Literary history the dominant form of literary scholarship throughout the 19th century is currently recapturing the imaginations of a new generation of scholars eager to focus on the context of literature after a half century or more of close readings of isolated texts This book represents current thinking on some of the theoretical issues and dilemmas in the conception and writing of literary history expressed by a group of scholars from North America Europe and Australia

World Authors, 1980-1985 Vineta Colby, 1991 Representing a broad range of ethnic diversity these in depth profiles present fascinating accounts of lives and careers the circumstances under which works were produced and their literary significance Each profile also includes critical evaluation a list of the author's principal works with date first published a list of major critical works and a portrait or photograph where available

Is Literary History Possible? David Perkins, 1992

Profoundly searching yet written with grace and lucidity A distinguished historian and critic illuminates and answers one of the major problems of literary study in a work that will become and remain a classic W Jackson Bate Perkins writes clearly and concisely Like Rene Wellek and M H Abrams he has an admirable gift for making clear the underlying assumptions of many different writers Comparative Literature
