

Ernest Hemingway's A Farewell to Arms: A Critical Study of war and its negative impact From an Ironic Perspective.

Abstract— Ernest Miller Hemingway (1899-1961) is one of the many American writers who lived during the World War-I and was highly affected by it. He wrote a number of well-known war novels and the most famous of them is his war novel A Farewell to Arms (1929). Hemingway has adopted an ironic method to show the contrast between the ideal and the real of the world of war and its influence upon both the military and the civil people as well. Irony as used in this study involves the recognition of incongruities, the contrast between the appearance and reality. The role of irony in his fiction is to elucidate this attitude which affects his vision of the modern world and its horrible war. By analyzing the method of irony in A Farewell to Arms, this study aims at showing the writer's ironic point of view in treating the negative effects of the war and its atmosphere both physically and psychologically.

Keywords—Ernest Hemingway, Irony, War, A Farewell to Arms.

Irony is widely used in the post-world war fiction. It is very significant to show the mood of dissatisfaction and disillusionment of society which saw the disaster caused by the World-War I. The writer, through the use of the method of irony, brought both the discrepancy between the ideal and reality. The First World War was projected as a golden opportunity for youths to achieve glory and process. The Americans, after removing the illusioned idealization of war, condemned the war for its inhuman violence and irrational deaths. In order to express this disillusionment and despair, many writers opted for the use of irony. They adopted an ironic method to reflect their vision of the life after World War I. A Farewell to Arms displays a remarkable use of irony.

Ernest Hemingway, through the use Irony, expresses his disillusionment and disenchantment with the war. He has bitterly denounced war and attacked the romantic notions associated with it and has revealed the misery and horror of it. A Farewell to Arms was published in 1929 after the First World War. Hemingway suffered the traumatic shock of the First World War like his countrymen. War jolted him entirely and this resulted in a change in his outlook on life. With all his hopes shattered, Hemingway saw "a world of corrupt civilization, decadent institutions, victimized human beings, and a universal meaninglessness and purposelessness of modern existence."¹ War severely affected the sensitivity of Hemingway. Disillusioned and depressed, he ventured to unmask the ugly face of war.

Hemingway's novel A Farewell to Arms is based on Hemingway's own experience as a participant in World War I. This novel remarkably reflects his attitudes towards war. In this novel, Hemingway shows the world of war with all its ugliness, violence, insanity, and irrationality. Besides giving an accurate account of the war, Hemingway has given an insightful description of the psychology of the soldiers. Being tired with war and its irrational pogrom, the soldiers started to look for peace. Hemingway got himself recruited as ambulance driver in the Italian army. He joined the army not because of any dire need or pressure but because of his own romantic notions about war. In his book The Critical Reception of Ernest Hemingway, Frank L. Rayon mentioned the views of ambulance drivers who developed the "spectatorial attitudes"² towards the war in the First World War. According to him these ambulance drivers became "watchers of war"³ because they were not combating but only travelling. Hemingway opted for war for satisfying his restless, adventurous spirit but he was horrified by what he saw on the battle field and returned with permanent wounds on his body and his memory.

Hemingway's experience with war changes his outlook on life completely. He was very enthusiastic before being enlisted for war but he was highly depressed and pessimistic when he returned from the war. He was seriously wounded in 1918 at the Italian front when a large number of Austrian mortar shell fell nearby. One of his comrades died instantaneously and another one lost his legs. Hemingway lost consciousness as a result of the shock. After regaining his consciousness, he tried to rescue one of his injured comrades by carrying him to a nearby first aid dugout. During this course, he was shot in volume explores the life and work of Ernest Hemingway focusing particularly on the themes of war in his novel A Farewell to Arms. Readers are presented with a series of essays which lend context and expand upon the themes of the book including viewpoints on the reasons for and the aftereffects of war. Contemporary perspectives on PTSD, foreign policy and military spending allow readers to further connect the events of the book to the issues of today's world. New Critical Essays on Kurt Vonnegut D. Simmons, 2015-12-04 Kurt Vonnegut's darkly comic work became a symbol for the counterculture of a generation. From his debut novel Player Piano 1951 through seminal 1960's novels such as Cat's Cradle 1963 and Slaughterhouse-Five 1969 up to the recent success of A Man Without a Country 2005 Vonnegut's writing has remained commercially popular offering a satirical yet optimistic outlook on modern life. Though many fellow writers admired Vonnegut, Gore Vidal famously suggesting that Kurt was never dull, the academic establishment has tended to retain a degree of scepticism concerning the validity of his work. This dynamic collection aims to re-evaluate Vonnegut's position as an integral part of the American post-war canon of literature.

Robert Penn Warren, Critic Charlotte H. Beck, 2006 Using a largely chronological approach, Charlotte Beck has carefully traced the evolution of Warren's criticism focusing on seminal examples of the critical books, essays and introductions that Warren produced over a period of almost seventy years. Her conclusions often run counter to previous evaluations of Warren's criticism, especially to those that complacently link Warren to Cleanth Brooks, his lifelong friend and collaborator, and to New Criticism in general. Beck demonstrates that Warren consistently treats writers holistically, taking into account biographical as well as historical data to account for their entire body of work rather than focusing on a single literary text. Jacket

Hemingway's In Our Time Wendolyn E. Tetlow, 1992 Many scholars consider In Our Time to be Hemingway's finest work, yet the cohesiveness of this sequence of stories and interchapters has often been questioned. Hemingway himself, however, had a clear idea of the work's integrity as his manuscripts and letters reveal. As he wrote to his publisher Horace Liveright on 31 March 1925: "There is nothing in the book that has not a definite place in its organization and if I at any time seem to repeat myself I have a good reason for doing so." Selected Letters 154. According to Ms Tetlow, author of this thoughtful study of Hemingway's In Our Time, the relationship among the stories and interchapters is precisely analogous to that within a modern poetic sequence as characterized by M. L. Rosenthal and Sally M. Gall in The Modern Poetic Sequence: The Genius of Modern Poetry, a grouping of mainly lyric poems and passages rarely uniform in pattern which tend to interact as an organic whole. It usually includes narrative and dramatic elements and ratiocinative ones as well, but its structure is finally lyrical. 9. The structure of In Our Time then is similar to such works as Ezra Pound's Hugh Selwyn Mauberley and T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land, works that progress tonally. Looking closely at the language of In Our Time, Ms Tetlow pays particular attention to recurring images and sounds and the successive sets of feeling these tonal complexes project. She traces the lyrical pattern in the sequence as it builds in intensity from denial of fear, suffering and death in the first stories and early interchapters and then traces the progression to cautious resignation in the latter stories and interchapters The author also takes into account the importance for Hemingway of Pound's and Eliot's aesthetics and demonstrates how Eliot's idea of the objective correlative and Pound's idea of direct treatment of the thing apply to Hemingway's stories and interchapters Literary Essays 3 Opening with a discussion of the six prose pieces in the original version the shorter In Our Time 1923 the study considers the aesthetic choices Hemingway made in revising these pieces when he incorporated them in his longer sequence of eighteen in In Our Time 1924 The study then discusses the lyrical progression of the prose sequence in the fully developed volume In Our Time 1925 Finally it looks at A Farewell to Arms and shows how the lyrical structure of In Our Time anticipates the longer work with its more continuous narrative pattern
