Critical Enterprise English Studies In Higher Education:

The Critical Enterprise Raymond Cowell, 2018-10-29 Originally published in 1975 The Critical Enterprise looks at how the expansion and diversification of English Studies was shaping and was shaped by the Higher Education curriculum The book looks at how students of sixth forms colleges polytechnics and universities alike found an increasing emphasis on interdisciplinary studies and how this opened new ways of studying new subjects The book defines the unique academic elements which make English Studies a unique academic experience as well as an essential ingredient of most interdisciplinary courses

English and Englishness Brian Doyle, 2013-06-19 First published in 2002 This volume is part of the New Accent series looking at English and popular culture language policy fiction and democracy Each volume in the series will seek to encourage rather than resist the process of change to stretch rather than reinforce the boundaries that currently define literature and its academic study

Wordsworth and the Formation of English Studies Ian Reid, 2004 Previous historical studies of English have not looked closely at the similarities of its development in different cultural settings and educational systems This book provides a cross national perspective on attempts to establish maintain and modify the discursive practices that constituted English literary studies in universities Drawing on archival sources it takes three leading institutions as exemplary sites Cornell University in the United States The University of London in Britain and the University of Melbourne in Australia places a persistent genetic identity exists that is best understood as Romantic More particularly Wordsworth's writings and a cluster of ideas images and attitudes associated with him exerted a normative pressure on curriculum and pedagogy during the 19th century emergence of the university and literature as we know them today They also provided long afterwards a naturalized set of framing assumptions

The Formation of College English Thomas P. Miller, 1997-04-15 In the middle of the eighteenth century English literature composition and rhetoric were introduced almost simultaneously into colleges throughout the British cultural provinces Professorships of rhetoric and belles lettres were established just as print was reaching a growing reading public and efforts were being made to standardize educated taste and usage The provinces saw English studies as a means to upward social mobility through cultural assimilation In the educational centers of England however the introduction of English represented a literacy crisis brought on by provincial institutions that had failed to maintain classical texts and learned languages Today as rhetoric and composition have become reestablished in the humanities in American colleges English studies are being broadly transformed by cultural studies community literacies and political controversies Once again English departments that are primarily departments of literature see these basic writing courses as a sign of a literacy crisis that is undermining the classics of literature The Formation of College English reexamines the civic concerns of rhetoric and the politics that have shaped and continue to shape college English

Critical Perspectives on Global Englishes in Asia Fan Fang, Handoyo Puji Widodo, 2019-06-05 Although the notion of Global Englishes GE has been widely discussed in the literature few books

consider how GE can be translated into educational practice This book addresses the incorporation of GE into language policy and curriculum pedagogy and assessment practices and focuses on a wide range of geographical and language contexts Incorporating GE into language curriculum pedagogy and assessment practices calls for a reframing of our pedagogical practices that take into account the use of Englishes in intercultural and multicultural encounters where people have different first languages and cultural backgrounds This book will be of interest to policymakers curriculum developers and practitioner researchers in the area of English language education The Publishers' Trade List Annual ,1978
