Dictionnaire Encyclopedique Des Sciences Du Langage:

Dictionnaire encyclopédique des sciences du langage Oswald Ducrot, Tzvetan Todorov, 1972 Ce dictionnaire ne se limite pas la linguistique stricto sensu y figurent aussi les concepts fondateurs comme celui de signe et symboliquement on y a pris en considération les productions de la langue et la place accordée à la poétique Nouveau dictionnaire encyclopédique des sciences du langage Oswald Ducrot, Jean-Marie Schaeffer, 1999 Cet ouvrage prend la suite du Dictionnaire encyclopédique des sciences du langage d'Oswald Ducrot et Tzvetan Todorov paru en 1972 Les sciences du langage se sont tellement développées depuis une vingtaine d'années que dans le détail on ne retrouvera plus grand chose ici du livre de 1972 même si l'organisation générale et le titre d'un grand nombre d'entrées restent les mêmes Du point de vue de l'information un grand nombre de concepts de théories et de références nouvelles ont été introduits et du même coup d'autres qui ne semblaient plus d'actualité ont été éliminés D'autre part un certain nombre de positions qui il y a vingt ans semblaient des évidences n'apparaissent plus que comme des tapes historiques Comme son prédécesseur c'est un très commode instrument de travail qui peut s'utiliser comme dictionnaire ou comme encyclopédie et ceci dans chacun des domaines qui vont de la linguistique aux études littéraires

Traduction critique commentée du "Nouveau dictionnaire encyclopédique des sciences du langage" de Oswald Ducrot & Jean-Marie Schaeffer (1995) Fatma Gutbi Salim, 2004 This work is a translation from French into Arabic of Oswald Ducrot's and Jean-Marie Schaeffer's Encyclopaedic Dictionary of Language Science The translated linguistic notions have been classified according to formal procedures applied in linguistics that are intra lingual borrowings proper linguistic idioms derived from scholarly inventions words having suffixes or prefixes and some utterances and expressions having specific linguistic value The translation brought about some results There are some terms in Arabic that underline the conceptual difference between terms considered a priori as synonymous Some terms taken from a common use of language when translated from French into Arabic fail to give way to major differences On the other hand there are some parallel cases Arabic derivational and morphological frames have remarkable flexibility and malleability that allow them to denominate some French linguistic notions The affixation process is well used in Arabic but given the differences in the procedures used in both languages the French words with prefixes and suffixes when translated change their grammatical category most of the time Arabic has its own means to express without any semantic loss some modal expressions or some utterances with specific and syntactic value in French
