Critical Development Theory:

Critical Development Theory Ronaldo Munck, Denis O'Hearn, 1999-03 In the late 20th century there has been a rethinking of the whole concept of development including a growing awareness of its gender cultural and environmental dimensions and the impact of globalization The contributors to this volume seek to extend these debates to a more fundamental level tackling such issues as the crisis of development as an intellectual and practical project the need for a break with development as a Eurocentric concept and the viability of alternative non Western forms of development The contributors aim to transcend critiques of development which simply engage in a blanket dismissal of the whole enterprise and instead offer ways of re engaging with reality that despite globalization is still a dimension of the late 20th century

The Essential Guide to Critical Development Studies Henry Veltmeyer, Paul Bowles, 2017-07-20 In recent years much mainstream development discourse has sought to co opt and neutralize key concepts relating to empowerment participation gender sustainability and inclusivity in order to serve a market driven neoliberal agenda Critical development studies now play a crucial role in combatting this by analyzing the systemic changes needed to transform the current world to one where economic and social justice and environmental integrity prevail The Essential Guide to Critical Development Studies takes as its starting point the multiple crises economic political social and environmental of the dominant current global capitalist system The chapters collectively document and analyze these crises and the need to find alternatives to the system s that generate them To do so analyses of class gender and empire are placed at the centre of discussion in contrast to markets liberalization and convergence which characterize mainstream development discourse Each contributor supplements their overview with a guide to the critical development studies literature on the topic thereby providing scholars and students not only with a precis of the key issues but also a signpost to further readings This is an important resource for academics researchers policymakers and professionals in the areas of development studies political science sociology economics gender studies history anthropology agrarian studies international relations and international political economy Development

Whose Development? Emma Crewe, Elizabeth Harrison, 1998-12 This book is an ethnography of development in practice It builds on recent work in the anthropology of development in its examination of the evolution and persistence of a number of key ideas about gender technology and race It explores how these are rooted in both material practices and ideologies notably the Enlightenment and colonialism but goes beyond previous studies which have tended to focus mainly on the apparently monolithic power of the developers The authors argue for a more nuanced account of power through analysis of the relationship between individual agency and structural constraint Their fascinating study shows how a simple dichotomy between us the developers and them the victims of development misconstrues the nature of the processes involved
