Critical Practice:

Critical Practice Catherine Belsey, 2002 What is poststructuralist theory and what difference does it make to literary criticism Where do we find the meaning of the text in the author's head in the reader's Or do we instead make meaning in the practice of reading itself If so what part do our own values play in the process of interpretation And what is the role of the text Catherine Belsey considers these and other questions concerning the relations between human beings and language readers and texts writing and cultural politics Assuming no prior knowledge of poststructuralism Critical Practice guides the reader confidently through the maze of contemporary theory It simply and lucidly explains the views of key figures such as Louis Althusser Roland Barthes Jacques Lacan and Jacques Derrida and shows their theories at work in readings of familiar literary texts Critical Practice argues that theory matters because it makes a difference to what we do when we read opening up new possibilities for literary and cultural analysis Poststructuralism in conjunction with psychoanalysis and deconstruction makes radical change to the way we read both a priority and a possibility With a new chapter updated guidance on further reading and revisions throughout this second edition of Critical Practice is the ideal guide to the present and future of literary studies

Social and Critical Practice in Art Education Dennis Atkinson, Paul Dash, 2005 This book takes a new exciting and important approach to art It shows how children and older students can use art to explore personal social and cultural issues that touch their lives The book covers new ground responding as it does to the increasingly diverse nature of cities and to recent government initiatives worldwide to foster social inclusion and equality of opportunity and support active citizenship The contributors are art educators They write about their ways of engaging with contemporary art practice in their particular fields so as to encourage young people to acquire critical understanding They also challenge the pedagogies that perpetuate long established forms of art practice Tim Rollins writes about his work with disaffected youths in the Bronx and John Johnston describes work in art to bring communities together in Northern Ireland Other contributors include Toby Jackson head of interpretation at Tate Modern Diedre Prinz curator of the Robben Island museum in South Africa the 198 Gallery in south London and Viv Golding who works in museums and gallery education Sinath Bannerjee explores socio cultural issues in comic novels in India and Sue Lok explores identities through art practices Educators at each level also contribute to this groundbreaking book Andy Gower describes his innovative art practice in a secondary school and children of Room 13 in a Scottish primary school report on their organization of their own focus for art Lesley Burgess and Nick Addison give an account of their development of critical and social practices in art education at London's Institute of Education The book is for all those working in art education in museums and galleries schools and communities Contributor information Tim Rollins work in New York with Kids of Survival KOS has achieved world wide acclaim Beginning in the 1980s Rollins taught a highly disaffected group of teenagers in the Bronx and together they established an art workshop where members of the group produced challenging conceptual art work Subsequently work was sold and is now held in major galleries around the world Through their visual practices many members of the group overcame feelings of rejection and alienation and developed self assurance and confidence John Johnston works with the Protestant communities in Belfast and through the use of visual practices he has been working with young people in a variety of community sites to explore issues of identity This is a difficult educational challenge given the history of Northern Ireland Recently he has been invited to work in Lebanon at a human rights summer school He has been working with young people there to explore themes of home and belonging through visual practices Room 13 consists of a highly creative group of children at Caol Primary School near Fort William in Scotland The children are producing contemporary art which has received much interest and acclaim nationally and internationally The children run Room 13 as an entirely self funding business independent from the school Rob Fairley and Claire Gibb are the only adults involved they offer advice but they are not the children's teachers An elected committee of children makes all decisions about the work and the business Viv Golding is a lecturer in museum studies at Leicester University She uses the concept of museum clearing to counter the discourses of lack often a self fulfilling prophecy that frequently permeates much discussion of Black children and their under achievement in UK schools today The practical value of her critique is illustrated through a fieldwork project involving imaginative art and literacy school and museum work in south London with early years children Deidre Prins and her team work as education officers at Robben Island Museum in South Africa They provide some background to the work of the museum and introduce readers briefly to the legacy of creative forms used in the maximum security prison between 1960s and 1991 and the role it played in creating a process of normalization under conditions that were repressive and alienating A large part of the audiences of Robben Island Museum are children and youth All of them have no memory or experience of the colonial period in RSA history and very few of them have a memory or experience of apartheid These are two defining periods in the lives of all South Africans with the scars benefits and joys of a new democracy To create a dynamic learning environment in which children and youth can engage with a legacy which is at once painful and liberatory requires a process of making memory speaking about the past doing the past and understanding the past Their engagement with this past in turn creates their own memories and leaves its mark on Robben Island which is a living museum The theme of memory making will be described through the production of a photographic collage which is part of the annual Spring School activities 198 Gallery The team at the 198 Gallery write about their work on the Urban Visions scheme which is an outreach programme that deals with disaffected youth in south London. Lucy Davies, the chief administrator and other gallery staff, will write about how their program has impacted on the learning experience of children from this diverse urban environment. Many are excluded from schools or have learning difficulties which schools find difficult to address. The gallery in its work across a range of media but more especially electronic media has earned the respect of many in educational and fine art circles both in this country and in mainland Europe. Sue Lok is an artist and lecturer at Middlesex University. She has a particular interest in the experience of Chinese British artists and young people. Her work will explore themes central to their experience alongside issues emanating from her own experience as an artist and researcher. Lesley Burgess and Nick Addison are art educators at the Institute of Education in London. They have a nationwide reputation for their seminal publication Learning to Teach Art and Design in the Secondary School. They have carried out further research in the arena of teacher education for this book. Andy Gower is head of art at a north London comprehensive school. He and his team have devised a way of teaching which is unique but very successful within the state system. Their issues-based approach extends across the year groups and encourages responses which address issues of personal, social, cultural and political concern. The idea is not to focus greatly on the development of traditional skills in making art but in fostering a creative thinking environment in which children respond imaginatively and personally to issues which impact on their lives. Sarnath is a comic artist who addresses issues through the graphic medium of comic imagery. His work explores relationships and issues of exclusion both physical and psychological. The ways in which his pieces unfold encourage different interpretations and readings of what is being said. It is an extraordinarily intense and challenging comic style which demands constant revisiting and re-reading. His chapter invites us to enter the world of a south Asian man whose thoughts drift in and out of different points of experience. It takes us on a physical and psychological journey and deposits us in a space that begs more questions about identity and belonging. Sarnath Banerjee has initiated a scheme in the south Asian community of Tower Hamlets in east London which will see Bengali women make comics about their lives and thoughts. He is developing a similar scheme among a number of minority ethnic communities in the Brixton area of south London. He is short!

Critical Practice in Higher Education Karen Gravett, 2025-01-23. What is critical practice? What is critique? And what do these ideas have to do with higher education? This book argues that engaging in critical practice is fundamental to meaningful teaching, learning and research. Critical practice is key to understanding societies, technologies and the power relations that pervade our practice. Critical approaches are vital for responding meaningfully to some of the knotty questions that we face in higher education. And yet there is a need to re-examine critical theorising in contemporary times to address the limitations of current conceptions of criticality where critique is at risk of becoming stale, redundant, even harmful. International in scope, this book engages theory and empirical data from recent research to offer new ways of thinking and doing critical practice. Case studies are drawn from teachers and academics working in the UK, Australia and America across a breadth of disciplines and learning environments Specifically the book proposes a move towards a relational critical practice After many years of attention that has been paid to cognitive notions of critical thinking skills and dispositions assumed to take place within the boundaries of rational individual minds this book takes us beyond thinking about criticality as an individualised activity Elaborating a critical practice that considers the affective embodied and relational nature of criticality this text will explore how we might look more closely at the entanglement of ideas and practice of mind and body of thinking feeling and doing In doing so this book argues for a celebration of critique and for the value of a relational critical practice in higher education Critical Practice Martin McQuillan, 2019-02-21 This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on www.bloomsburycollections.com What is the relationship between theory and practice in the creative arts today In Critical Practice Martin McQuillan offers a critical interrogation of the idea of practice led research He goes beyond the recent vocabulary of research management to consider the more interesting question of the emergence of a cultural space in which philosophy theory history and practice are becoming indistinguishable McQuillan considers the work of a number of writers and thinkers who cross the divide between theoretical and creative practice including Alain Badiou and Terry Eagleton and the longer tradition of theory writing that runs through the work of H l ne Cixous Roland Barthes and Louis Althusser His aim is to elucidate the contemporary ramifications of a relationship that has been contested throughout the long history of philosophy from Plato s dialogues to Derrida s Envois
