Appreciating the Art of Television Ted Nannicelli,2016-09-13 Contemporary television has been marked by such exceptional programming that it is now common to hear claims that TV has finally become an art In Appreciating the Art of Television Nannicelli contends that televisual art is not a recent development but has in fact existed for a long time Yet despite the flourishing of two relevant academic subfields the philosophy of film and television aesthetics there is little scholarship on television in general as an art form This book aims to provide scholars active in television aesthetics with a critical overview of the relevant philosophical literature while also giving philosophers of film a particular account of the art of television that will hopefully spur further interest and debate It offers the first sustained theoretical examination of what is involved in appreciating television as an art and how this bears on the practical business of television scholars critics students and fans namely the comprehension interpretation and evaluation of specific televisual artworks The High School Journal ,1991 Integrating Elements Nancy Stalnaker Norwood,1989 Education for the Television Age Milton E. and policymakers the authors discuss television and the imagination the healing function of play and the effects of playfulness and creativity throughout the life span Teaching Strategies for the Social Studies James A. Banks,1985
