Critical Regionalism And Cultural Studies:

Critical Regionalism and Cultural Studies Cheryl Herr, 1996 In this work Cheryl Herr uses architect Kenneth Frampton's idea of critical regionalism to describe a comparative methodology for cultural studies. Demonstrating a process of oscillating perspectives moving from a subject location to an object social scene and back again, she details the impact of both immediate social forces and behind-the-scenes institutions on two heartlands: rural Ireland and the American Midwest. She also provides the tools to understand symmetrical historical global patterns in Ireland and the Midwest. Herr strongly supports a crosscultural approach in which every issue is framed by its role in a hierarchy of increasingly global economic institutions. At the same time, she considers the representation of crisis on the local level. She uses creative found and forced assemblages to illustrate historical processes and provides a strong case for a larger place in the university curriculum for a crosscultural studies methodology.

Critical Regionalism Douglas Reichert Powell, 2007 The idea of region in America has often served to isolate places from each other, observes Douglas Reichert Powell. Whether in the nostalgic celebration of folk cultures or the urbane distaste for hicks, certain regions of the country are identified as The Exhaustion of Difference.

Alberto Moreiras, 2001-09-26 A sophisticated theoretical reconsideration of Latin American studies, critiquing past work and proposing new frameworks for the discipline.

Critical Regionalism Klaus Lösch, Heike Paul, Meike Zwingenberger, 2016 This volume presents cultural analyses in the larger field of American Studies, applying a critical regionalist approach. Loosely defined as a set of anti-foundational perspectives in the wake of the spatial turn, critical regionalism seeks to investigate apparent regional specificities against the backdrop of local global trajectories with regard to cultural practices and literary visual representations. Taking their cue from urban studies and the work of Kenneth Frampton, the essays in this volume inquire about the region as a category of difference alongside race, gender, class, and as a possibly subversive point of view from which to critique hegemonic spatial and capitalist practices. Topics include an analysis of the commodification of bees and contemporary bee trucking in the US; Cheryl Herr's examination of border culture and art at the US-Mexico border; Silvia Spitta's exploration of the role of the regional and the global as the basis for feminist politics in the modern women's movement; Katharina Gerund's critique of region and class in the phenomenon of redneck exploitation and television culture; Tanja Aho, as well as a critical regionalist account of ruin landscapes in the US. Miles Orvell, to name only a few contributions to this volume. All of them seek to re-appraise questions of regionalism in light of individual and collective identity formation, consumerism, and political protest.

Affective Critical Regionality Neil Campbell, 2016-08-17 Affective Critical Regionality offers a new approach to developing a sharper, more nuanced understanding of the relations between place, space, memory, and affect. It builds on the author's extensive work on the American West, where he developed the idea of expanded critical regionalism to underline the West as multiple, dynamic, and relationally engaged in global-local processes, tensions between the rooted and the routed, and increasingly as relevant to debates around the politics of precarity and vulnerability.

This book uses affective critical regionality to enable a re valuing of the local as a powerful means to appreciate the everyday and the over looked as vital elements within a more inclusive understanding of how we live Exploring a variety of cultural materials including fiction memoir theory poetry and film it demonstrates how this approach can deepen our understanding of and simultaneously provoke new relations with place Moving beyond the US context through its use of international theoretical voices and texts it will show how the concept is applicable to other cultural spheres

Global/Local Rob Wilson, Wimal Dissanayake, 1996-05-27 This groundbreaking collection focuses on what may be for cultural studies the most intriguing aspect of contemporary globalization the ways in which the postnational restructuring of the world in an era of transnational capitalism has altered how we must think about cultural production Mapping a new world space that is simultaneously more globalized and localized than before these essays examine the dynamic between the movement of capital images and technologies without regard to national borders and the tendency toward fragmentation of the world into increasingly contentious enclaves of difference ethnicity and resistance Ranging across issues involving film literature and theory as well as history politics economics sociology and anthropology these deeply interdisciplinary essays explore the interwoven forces of globalism and localism in a variety of cultural settings with a particular emphasis on the Asia Pacific region Powerful readings of the new image culture transnational film genre and the politics of spectacle are offered as is a critique of globalization as the latest guise of colonization Articles that unravel the complex links between the global and local in terms of the unfolding narrative of capital are joined by work that illuminates phenomena as diverse as yellow cab interracial sex in Japan machinic desire in Robocop movies and the Pacific Rim city An interview with Fredric Jameson by Paik Nak Chung on globalization and Pacific Rim responses is also featured as is a critical afterword by Paul Bov

Positioned at the crossroads of an altered global terrain this volume the first of its kind analyzes the evolving transnational imaginary the full scope of contemporary cultural production by which national identities of political allegiance and economic regulation are being undone and in which imagined communities are being reshaped at

Identifying the antebellum era in the United States as a transitional setting Imagining Southern Spaces investigates spatialization processes about the South during a time when intensifying debates over the abolition of slavery led to a heightened period of re spatialization in the region Taking the question of abolition as a major factor that shaped how different actors responded to these processes this book studies spatial imaginations in a selection of abolitionist and proslavery literature of the era Through this diversity of imaginations the book points to a multitude of Souths in various economic political and cultural entanglements in the American Hemisphere and the Circumatlantic Thus it challenges monolithic and provincial representations of the South as a provincial region distinct from the rest of the country Critical Regionalism Douglas Reichert Powell, 2007 Critical Regionalism Connecting Politics and Culture in the American Landscape

Architecture of Regionalism in the Age of Globalization Liane Lefaivre, Alexander Tzonis, 2020-12-13 This book remains the definitive introductory text on the theory and history of regionalist architecture in the context of globalization It addresses issues of identity diversity community inequality geopolitics and sustainability From the authors who coined the concept of Critical Regionalism this new edition enhances the understanding of the complex evolution of regionalism and its rival unchecked globalization Covering a rich selection of the most outstanding examples of design from all over the world Liane Lefaivre and Alexander Tzonis who introduced the concept of Critical Regionalism to architecture present an enlightening concise historical analysis of the endurance of regionalism and the ceaseless drive for globalization New case studies include current cutting edge projects in Japan Africa China and the United States Architecture of Regionalism in the Age of Globalization offers undergraduate and graduate students of architecture geography history environmental studies and other related fields an accessible vivid and scholarly perspective of this major conflict as it relates to the design and to the future of the human made environment Dwelling in Fiction Ashley R. Brock, 2023-12-15 Explores the affective ethical and political demands that difficult reading places on readers of midcentury Latin American literature The radical formal experiments undertaken by writers across Latin America in the mid twentieth century introduced friction opacity and self reflexivity to the very act of reading Dwelling in Fiction Poetics of Place and the Experimental Novel in Latin America explores the limitations and the possibilities of literature for conveying place specific forms of life Focusing on authors such as Jos Mar a Arguedas Jo o Guimar es Rosa and Juan Jos Saer who are often celebrated for universalizing regional themes Ashley R Brock brings a new critical lens to Latin American writers who were ambivalent toward their era s boom Beyond mere resistance to or critique of the commodification and political instrumentalization of rural topics and types this countertrend of critical regionalism positions readers themselves as outsiders pushing them to engage their senses to train their attention and to learn to dwell in unknown textual landscapes Dwelling in Fiction draws on a transnational community of thinkers and writers to show how their midcentury aesthetic practices of sensorial pedagogy anticipate contemporary

Transcultural Architecture Thorsten Botz-Bornstein, 2016-03-09 Critical Regionalism is a notion which gained popularity in architectural debate as a synthesis of universal modern elements and individualistic elements derived from local cultures This book shifts the focus from Critical Regionalism towards a broader concept of Transcultural Architecture and defines Critical Regionalism as a subgroup of the latter One of the benefits that this change of perspective brings about is that a large part of the political agenda of Critical Regionalism which consists of resisting attitudes forged by typically Western experiences is softened and negotiated according to premises provided by local circumstances A further benefit is that several responses dependent on factors that initial definitions of Critical Regionalism never took into account can now be considered At the book s centre is an analysis of Reima and Raili Pietil s Sief Palace Area project in Kuwait Further cases of modern architecture in China Korea and Saudi Arabia show that the critique which holds that Critical Regionalism is a typical western exercise is not sound in all circumstances The book argues that there are different Critical Regionalisms and not all of them impose Western paradigms on non Western cultures Non Western regionalists can also successfully participate in the Western enlightened discourse even when they do not directly and consciously act against Western models Furthermore the book proposes that a certain architectural rationality can be contained in architecture itself not imposed by outside parameters like aesthetics comfort or even tradition but flowing out of a social game of which architecture is a part The key concept is that of the form of life as developed by Ludwig Wittgenstein whose thoughts are here linked to Critical Regionalism Kenneth Frampton argues that Critical Regionalism offers something well beyond comfort and accommodation What he has in mind are ethical prescripts closely linked to a Arizona Journal of Hispanic Cultural Studies ,2003 The Canadian Journal of Irish Studies ,2003 Cultural Discourses of Bosnian Identity from the Death of Tito to the Postwar Period Laurel K.
