How Others Learn Amina Wakefield, 1992 Policy, Experience and Change: Cross-Cultural Reflections on Inclusive Education Len Barton, Felicity Armstrong, 2007-02-08 One of the qualities of this book is the authors engagement with personal experience This is part of the contextualising of issues within particular cultural historical and social contexts I shall begin the Foreword in the same spirit by recounting an experience that is still a foundation for analysing and developing my own understanding This happened some twenty five years ago I was going with Vic Finkelstein a disabled a demic and activist to a seminar on a hot summer s day making our way across the Open University campus in Milton Keynes The seminar was entitled The Problems of Integration Making conversation with Vic I suggested that the seminar sounded interesting His response was immediate and direct no it was not interesting the problems for disabled people were the problems of segregation not the problems of integration As he did often for me Vic turned understanding on its head and his seemingly simple observation carried ever increasing ripples of critical questioning Reading of international developments and of the specifics of education policy provision and practice across the widely differing circumstances found in different nation states from the majority as well as the minority world challenges deepens and confirms understanding There are not surprisingly considerable diversities and complexities and recurring themes that speak to both and fire critical questioning The complexities pretty quickly give food for thought and ring bells of caution The first for me is the lack of digestion the impossibility of comprehensive knowledge Disciplines in the Making Geoffrey Ernest Richard Lloyd, 2009 effective learning environments Culture Learning Louise Damen, 1987 This text explores cross cultural awareness and intercultural communicative skills from culture general and culture specific perspectives It is appropriate for language teachers teacher trainers counsellors advisors and other professionals concerned with multi cultural issues Teaching for Wisdom Michel Ferrari, Georges Potworowski, 2008-10-14 The chapters in this volume are all devoted to a single question Can wisdom be taught or at least fostered They span many different traditions and times which generates both problems and opportunities The most obvious problem is that of translation As Curnow points out in the opening chapter the word wisdom is used to translate a variety of terms from antiquity that have only a partial overlap with modern work It is interesting to consider that the Egyptian word seboyet translates as either wisdom or instruction The same is true of terms from Buddhism or Confucianism or even the Ancient Greek tradition acknowledged as a source of most current views of wisdom in the West all the terms drawn from other languages and traditions have only partially overlapping meaning With this in mind each chapter can be read independently of the others However we have also arranged them in an order that reflects common themes that emerge despite this diversity We have not arranged them by geographical region or historical time but rather by the sort of educational strategy they advocate to foster wisdom The first chapter by Curnow provides a basic overview of approaches to teaching for wisdom in the West This is already a very ambitious undertaking spanning ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia to the renaissance and the dawn of the modern world where the term wisdom has fallen largely out of fashion until very recently
