The New Art of the Fifteenth Century: Faith and Art in Florence and The Netherlands Shirley Neilsen

Blum, 2013-09-03 A fresh look at the early Renaissance considering Florentine and Netherlandish art as a single phenomenon at once deeply spiritual and entirely new Adam and Eve are driven from the Garden of Eden into a rocky landscape their naked bodies lit by a cold sun their gestures and expressions a study in shame and anguish A serious man well attired kneels in prayer before the Virgin and Child close enough to touch them almost his furrowed brow setting off the saintly perfection of their features In fifteenth century Florence and Flanders painters were using an arsenal of new techniques including perspective anatomy and the accurate treatment of light and shade to present traditional religious subjects with an unprecedented immediacy and emotional power Their art was the product of a shared Christian culture and their patrons included not only nobles and churchmen but also the middle classes of these thriving commercial centers Shirley Neilsen Blum offers a new synthesis of this remarkable period in Western art between the refinements of the Gothic and the classicism of the High Renaissance when the mystical was made to seem real In the first part of her text Blum traces the emergence of a new naturalism in the sculpture of Claus Sluter and Donatello and then in the painting of Van Eyck and Masaccio In the second part she compares scenes from the Infancy and Passion of Christ as rendered by artists from North and South Exploring both the images themselves and the theological concepts that lie behind them she re creates as far as possible the experience of the contemporary fifteenth century viewer Abundantly illustrated with color plates of masterworks by Fra Angelico Botticelli Rogier van der Weyden and others this thought provoking volume will appeal equally to general readers and students of art history

Landscape and Religion from Van Eyck to Rembrandt Boudewijn

Bakker, 2017-07-05 Offering a corrective to the common scholarly characterization of seventeenth century Dutch landscape painting as modern realistic and secularized Boudewijn Bakker here explores the long history and purpose of landscape in Netherlandish painting In Bakker's view early Netherlandish as well as seventeenth century Dutch painting can be understood only in the context of the intellectual climate of the day Concentrating on landscape painting as the careful depiction of the visible world Bakker's analysis takes in the thought of figures seldom consulted by traditional art historians such as the fifteenth century philosopher Dionysius the Carthusian the sixteenth century religious reformer John Calvin the geographer Abraham Ortelius and the seventeenth century poet Constantijn Huygens Probing their conception of nature as the first Book of God and art as its representation Bakker identifies a world view that has its roots in the traditional Christian perceptions of God and creation Landscape and Religion from Van Eyck to Rembrandt imposes a new layer of interpretation on the richly varied landscapes of the great masters In so doing it adds a new dimension to the insights offered by modern art historical research Further Bakker's explorations of early modern art and literature provide essential background for any student of European intellectual history

Sight and Spirituality in Early Netherlandish Painting Bret L.

Rothstein,2005-06-08 Publisher Description Jan Van Eyck Craig Harbison,1995 Jan van Eyck's surviving work comprises a series of painstakingly detailed oil paintings of astonishing verisimilitude In a fascinating recovery of the neglected human dimension that is clearly present in these works Craig Harbison interrogates the personal histories of the worldly participants of such masterpieces as the Virgin and Child with George van der Paele the Arnolfini Double Portrait and the Virgin and Child with Nicolas Rolin With the aid of abundant visual evidence in color and in black and white Harbison reveals how van Eyck presented his contemporaries with a more subtle and complex view of the value of appearances as a route to understanding the meaning of life I found this an enthralling study The Sunday Telegraph A fascinating investigation into the nature of the great pioneer's clients some fine photo details Art Review Historical Dictionary of Renaissance Art

EARLY NETHERLANDISH PAINTING A fully illustrated survey of Early Netherlandish painting featuring all of the major artists and many lesser known painters Early Netherlandish painting also known as Flemish painting is characterized by figurative realism its incredible sense of domestic interiors and details luminous light its realist faces and its fusions of a micro and macro cosmic vision We concentrate here on painters such as Rogier van der Weyden 1400 1464 Jan van Eyck c 1390 1441 commonly described as the founder of modern oil painting Gerard David c 1460 1523 Hugo van der Goes 1440 1482 Hans Memling 1433 1494 Joos van Cleve c 1485 1540 Jan Gossaert also called Mabuse c 1475 8 1532 Geertgen tot Sint Jans fl late 15th 1485 95 Quentin Massys c 1465 1530 Joachim Patinir c 1485 1524 Dieric Bouts c 1415 1475 Petrus Christus fl 1442 1473 and Bernard van Orley c 1488 1541 One of the most celebrated aspects of Early Netherlandish or Flemish painting is its heartfelt intense religious emotion It is this aspect that interests us in this book The new aesthetic vision of Early Netherlandish art was later applied to still life paintings satires landscapes and portraits but it is the religious works with which we are concentrating on here Michelangelo's famous statement about Early Netherlandish art pinpoints the depth of devout feeling found in so much of Northern European art Flemish painting will generally speaking please the devout better than any painting in Italy which will never cause him to shed a tear whereas that of Flanders will cause him to shed many The new vision of Northern European painting which flourished in the 15th century was a combination of a new aesthetic approach to reality and an intensifying of religious fervour The new vision aimed at sculptural accuracy a naturalistic use of lighting and three dimensionality Mixed with the new use of oil paint the new vision gave the art of Philip the Good's reign a special flavour and style well suited to the circumscription of devout religious truths The new painting inherited its jewel like brilliancy partly because many painters were trained as goldsmiths This skilled handling of metalwork and miniature illustration shows in Early Netherlandish art All Early Netherlandish paintings were made on wood panels and painted from light to dark in thin glazes It is partly this subtle glazing which gives Early Netherlandish painting its glorious luminescence The Early Netherlandish artists exploited the effects of different hues and thicknesses of glazes of oil paint controlling how the glazes reflected light Library Catalog of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.
