HOW IT WORKS

Frogs are delightful creatures. Our country is home to more than 120 named species, and they can be found in almost any Australian landscape. Most frogs lay eggs on land or in the water. Then, after the eggs hatch, tadpoles enter the water for two weeks to six months, depending on the temperature, before emerging as frog lets (baby frogs). Not all frogs do this. The hip-pocket frog is a very interesting example of parental care. After the female hip-pocket frog has spawned, the male will lie on her eggs and about eight tadpoles wriggle up into each pocket where they grow into baby frogs. Australia's two species of gastric brooding frogs are even more amazing. They swallow their fertilised eggs and hatch the tadpoles in their stomachs. Six weeks later the frog lets emerge from their mother's mouth.

Context Of Explanation:

The Context of Explanation M. Bunzl, 2012-12-06 In this book Martin Bunzl considers the prospects for a general and comprehensive account of explanation given the variety of interests that prompt explanations in science Bunzl argues that any successful account of explanation must deal with two very different contexts one static and one dynamic Traditionally theories of explanation have been built for the former of these two contexts That is to say they are designed to show how it is that a finished body of scientific knowledge can be put to explanatory use But finished sciences are few and far between Real explanation also occurs in a dynamical context in which questions are asked and answers are given as theories are in the process of being constructed Here Bunzl argues that attending to explanation produced under these dynamic circumstances undermines prominent features of the theory of explanation produced in the traditional static context
