

related to Vietnam's under development and its incomplete transformation process. The poor state of markets, especially the capital, monetary, and labor markets, and the shortage of qualified and experienced business people have all surely contributed to the current situation, as has the dearth of economic managers with the professional knowledge and skills to manage and control both the macro- and the micro-economies and to process information and forecast markets accurately. Therefore the transition to a market economy in Vietnam is not fully complete. The economy is still at a very low level of development and infrastructure and law are much more backward than those found in many other regional and global countries.

It is necessary to speed up the current reforms of Vietnam's economy so that the country can share in the recent rapid recovery of the regional economies. It is estimated that the short-term prospects for the economy will continue to be affected by the regional financial and economic crisis. FDI will be slow in returning to Vietnam, and international competition for investment capital and markets may become more intense. The weaknesses of the Vietnamese economy, its inefficiency, backward production technology, weak competitiveness, low savings rate, and inadequate domestic investment, have not fundamentally been overcome, and growth rates in recent years have returned to more moderate levels. The present targets for the year 2000 national plan aim to merely maintain the growth rate of 1999 and to halt the declines of the past few years. In the middle to long-term, however, and with more efforts toward economic reform, there is every prospect that the business environment will improve, that domestic resources will be utilized, and that foreign investment will return to Vietnam. Vietnamese economic development will make great strides and contribute positively to the dynamic development of East and Southeast Asia in the first years of the twenty-first century.

Bao Tat Thang is head of the Department of Vietnam's External Economic Relations at the Institute of Economics, NCKPS, Hanoi, Vietnam.

Conflict and Transition in the Vietnamese Economic Reform Program Lewis M. Stern, 1988 Though terrorist groups are a fixture of contemporary politics and warfare the world has never witnessed the degree of sheer brutality demonstrated by the group known as ISIS the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant Its sadistic disregard for human life sophisticated use of social media acquisition of territory and ability to attract foreign fighters is unprecedented Stern and Berger analyze the tools ISIS uses both to frighten innocent citizens and lure new soldiers and offer practical ideas on potential government responses

From Plan To Market Adam Fforde, Stefan De Vylder, 1996-02-22 This clear and accessible text explores Vietnam's successful transition from neo Stalinist central planning to a market economy Vietnamese style After describing the north Vietnamese system prior to 1975 and its colonial and pre colonial antecedents the authors uncover the mechanisms of that changeover They contend that the Vietnamese transition was largely bottom up in character and that it evolved over a long enough period for the country's political economy to adjust This explains in part the rapid shift to a high growth externally oriented development path in the early 1990s despite the loss of Soviet aid and the lack of significant Western substitutes until 1992 1993 Based upon extensive in country experience a wealth of primary materials and wide comparative knowledge of development issues the book challenges many preconceived notions both about Vietnam and about the general nature of transition processes Vietnam's Economic Reforms: an Economy in Transition Xuan Oanh Nguyen, 1992 Economic Reform in Vietnam Keith Griffin, 2016-01-20 Vietnam along with China stands out as a rare success story among transition economies This authoritative study of the reform process since 1989 pays particular attention to the way the macroeconomics framework can contribute to an environment that encourages human development and helps to reduce poverty Thus there are chapters on macroeconomics reforms international trade policies the role of the state rural development education and health environmental issues and poverty and gender inequality Although areas of weakness are indicated emphasis is placed on the success Vietnam has experienced compared to other transition economies The lessons of both the successes and failures of the reform process for policymakers elsewhere are outlined Vietnam's Reforms and Economic Growth C. Harvie, T. Van Hoa, Tran Van Hoa, 1997-09-30 Vietnam's bold economic reforms initiated under the title of Doi Moi in 1986

Economic Reform and Employment Relations in Vietnam Ngan Thuy Collins,2009-09-10 This book surveys Vietnam's economic reforms since the start of the transition from socialist planning to market economy and in particular their impact on employment relations the transformation of which has been a key part of reforms and a necessary pre condition to Vietnam's entry to the WTO in 2006

Economic Reform in Vietnam Keith B. Griffin,1998 Vietnam along with China stands out as a rare success story among transition economies This authoritative study of the reform process since 1989 pays particular attention to the way the macroeconomics framework can contribute to an environment that encourages human development and helps to reduce poverty Thus there are chapters on macroeconomics reforms international trade policies the role of the state rural development education and health environmental issues and poverty and gender inequality Although areas of weakness are indicated emphasis is placed on the success Vietnam has experienced compared to other transition economies The lessons of both the successes and failures of the reform process for policymakers elsewhere are outlined

The Politics and Economics of Transition to an Open Market Economy in Viet Nam James Riedel,William S. Turley,1999

Institutions in Transition Lisa Román,2012-12-06 If you want to become a doctor practice in a war if you want to become an economist practice in Vietnam 1 Phan Van Tiem Vietnam is one of many countries presently undergoing fundamental institutional change the market mechanism is replacing central planning So far the achievements are impressive In the mid 1980s the country failed to feed its population suffered from hyperinflation and faced general economic stagnation In the early 1990s the annual economic growth rate had accelerated to some eight to nine percent the inflation rate had fallen to two digit levels sometimes even lower and the country had become one of the world's largest rice exporters Add some more details the increased foreign trade the inflow of foreign investments the diversification of agriculture and various reform measures taken to alter the basic economic structure and the success story of the Vietnamese transition is told The country has hence followed the same path as its northern neighbor China and provided a counterexample to much more cumbersome processes that have been adopted in a number of other transforming countries notably those of the former USSR This transition is by no means over Indeed it is misleading to think of transition as a process that departs from a well defined pre condition and moves towards an equally well defined end point Awakening the Market Danny M.

Leipziger,1992 This essay considers the basic issues facing transitional socialist economies including price reforms enterprise and financial sector reforms and institutional changes relating to the role of government Using Viet Nam as the case in point it identifies the key constraints facing governments seeking to move rapidly to the market system Although Viet Nam is only on its third year of reform it has achieved a number of successes prominent among which are almost complete price decontrol and a flexible exchange rate The essay addresses a number of specific concerns facing Viet Nam Among these are links between enterprise and banking form issues of decentralization industrial policy changes in ownership and private sector development and issues of social justice The objectives of this paper are to i inform a broad readership about the bold economic reform program being undertaken without international assistance in Viet Nam ii to identify for the authorities key bottlenecks and future issues to be addressed iii to contrast where possible this experiment vis a vis reform programs in other countries and iv to begin the process of generalizing lessons from these cases so as to better understand the transformation process itself Essays on the Political Economy of Reform in Vietnam Vũ Thành Tư Anh, 2004 This dissertation consists of three self contained papers on economic reform in transition economies with a special focus on Vietnam
