

Making Connections

Text - to - Self

A connection between the text and your own life experiences

To make a text-to-self connection, think about whether the text you are reading is similar to your own life.

Ask yourself: Have I ever done or experienced something similar to the characters in the story?

Complete any of these sentences to make a text-to-self connection.

The story reminds me of the time when I...

I understand how the character feels because I feel like that too when...

When the character felt... I was just like when I...

Something similar happened to me when...

Connections

- to - Text

A connection between a text and another story or text that you have read before

Think about whether the characters, events and settings are similar or unlike to those of another story.

Does anything like this happen?

The story...

Something really similar happened to the characters in...

The reminds me of another book I read because...

Connections

to - World

A connection between a text and something that is happening, or has happened, in the world.

Think about whether anything that happened in the story is similar to something that has happened in the real world.

Could anything like this happen in the real world?

The events in the story remind me of a time when...

The text makes me wonder about the future because...
