Contemporary Topics In Immunobiology Volume 3:

Contemporary Topics in Molecular Immunology Gordon Ada, 2012-03-19 A series of volumes devoted to molecular immunology will contain for the most part articles which attempt to explain immunological phenomena in terms of the behavior and properties of particular molecules Many of the articles in this volume do this At the same time there are many instances and this is particularly so in the case of immunology where phenomena must first be described and interpreted in terms of the properties and behavior of cells Most of us would hope that in due course a fuller understanding will be forthcoming This volume starts off with such a contribution Perhaps the most fascinating problem in immunology is how diversity is generated There are two broad proposals 1 that complete information exists ab initio the germ line theory and 2 that there is initially a limited amount of information and diversity is generated by somatic mutation The issue is unresolved but Cunningham has taken many of the data which have previously been used to support the germ line theory and shows that the interpretations are not always clear cut and can frequently be used to support another possibility that new specificities may arise after stimulation of appropriate cells by antigens And he has produced experimental evidence to support this notion On the other hand there can be little doubt that to a considerable degree the specificity of the immune response is determined by the selection by antigen of cells with receptors of appropriate specificity This is essentially a surface phenomenon

Contemporary Topics in Immunobiology Max Cooper, 2012-12-06 Contemporary immunobiology is an ever diversifying field that embraces many aspects of cellular and humoral immune responsiveness This includes the phylogeny ontogeny induction regulation expression and differentiation of the immune cell series as well as the relationship of these to the pathogenesis of many disease processes It is clearly beyond the limitations of each volume in this series to comprehensively cover progress in each of these fields Three general areas of contemporary investigations are discussed in the current issue cellular events of B cell differentiation including antigen recognition and responsiveness of B lymphocytes regulation of the immune response by T cells and the roles of this regulatory system in allotype suppression and in autoimmunity and the genetic control of immune responses and its possible relation to disease pathogenesis Analysis of responsiveness of B lymphocytes has been greatly aided by the availability of athymic nude mice The immunological responsiveness of these mice to a wide range of stimuli has been reviewed and analyzed by H H Wortis This article concludes with the provocative thesis that in the future nudes will supply new rather than confirmatory data especially regarding the development of neoplasia In contrast to the studies on the congenitally athymic mice G F

Contemporary Topics in Immunobiology Noel L. Warner, 1980-11 Although the field of contemporary immunobiology continues to diversify and encompass an increasing array of biomedical disciplines and topics there are frequently several themes that will receive special emphasis and prominence at any given time It is our hope that this series will reflect these themes and provide an appropriate venue for exposure of such topics at a useful time. Although this particular volume is not designated as one of the special topics volumes in this series, the selected topics have in essence come together to consider aspects of two major areas of considerable research interest in immunobiology today. These concern new approaches and insights into an understanding of the tumor-host relationship and aspects of cellular interactions and networks as approached by various different lines of investigation. The province of tumor immunology remains one of the most challenging areas to immunologists as it of necessity involves not only developing an understanding of the neoplastic process itself and how the immune system responds but of eventually using this information in a diagnostic or therapeutic manner.
