Learning and Teaching Languages Through Content Roy Lyster, 2007 Based on a synthesis of classroom SLA research that has helped to shape evolving perspectives of content based instruction since the introduction of immersion programs in Montreal more than 40 years ago this book presents an updated perspective on integrating language and content in ways that engage second language learners with language across the curriculum A range of instructional practices observed in immersion and content based classrooms is highlighted to set the stage for justifying a counterbalanced approach that integrates both content based and form focused instructional options as complementary ways of intervening to develop a learner s interlanguage system A counterbalanced approach is outlined as an array of opportunities for learners to process language through content by means of comprehension awareness and production mechanisms and to negotiate language through content by means of interactional strategies involving teacher scaffolding and feedback thinking as well as problem solving skills urged by the National Research Council 1999 Despite this emphasis there is a severe shortage of empirical research on PBL and research based frameworks and models based on sound theoretical guidance in general and second and foreign language education in particular Thomas 2000 Also missing from the second and foreign language education literature is systematic discussion of PBL work that brings together representative work identifying obvious gaps and guiding the field toward future directions This first of its kind volume bridges these obvious gaps through the original work of international scholars from Canada Israel Japan Singapore and the US

Usage-Based Second Language Instruction Ian Pemberton, 2024-03-05 This book proposes an innovative pedagogical approach Usage Based Second Language Instruction which continues the tradition of challenges to existing paradigms such as Steven Krashen's Natural Approach and Michael Lewis Lexical Approach It begins by analysing historical teaching methods to make the case for change The author argues that Communicative Language Teaching lacks a theory of learning and overemphasises spoken production as a result The book then examines theories of first language acquisition to establish a theoretical basis for change It finds that usage based theories offer a highly plausible account of language learning The author sets out six principles to guide the application of usage based theory to second language learning The book will be of particular interest to students and researchers of Applied Linguistics and Language Education

The author deftly interweaves the latest results of pedagogical research with descriptions of the most successful computer assisted language learning CALL projects to show how to implement technology in the foreign language curriculum to assist the second language acquisition process. This fully updated second edition includes new chapters on the latest electronic resources including gaming and social media and discusses the realities and potential of distance learning for second language acquisition. The author examines the web CALL applications and computer mediated communication CMC and suggests how the new technologically assisted curriculum will work for the foreign language curriculum. Rather than advocating new technologies as a replacement for activities that can be done equally well with traditional processes, the author envisions a radical change as teachers rethink their strategies and develop their competence in the effective use of technology in language teaching and learning. Directed at all language teachers from the elementary school to postsecondary levels, the book is ideal for graduate level courses on second language pedagogy. Scaffolding Language Development in Immersion and Dual Language Classrooms Diane J. Tedick, Roy Lyster, 2020. Scaffolding Language Development in Immersion and Dual Language Classrooms. This book introduces research-based pedagogical practices for supporting and enhancing language development and use in school-based immersion and dual language programs in which a second foreign heritage or indigenous language is used as the medium of subject matter instruction. Using counterbalanced instruction as the volume's pedagogical framework, the authors map out the specific pedagogical skill set and knowledge base that teachers in immersion and dual language classrooms need so their students can engage with content taught through an additional language while continuing to improve their proficiency in that language. To illustrate key concepts and effective practices, the authors draw on classroom-based research and include teacher-created examples of classroom application. The following topics are covered in detail: defining characteristics of immersion and dual language programs and features of well-implemented programs; strategies to promote language and content integration in curricular planning as well as classroom instruction and performance assessment; an instructional model to counterbalance form-focused and content-based instruction; scaffolding strategies that support students' comprehension and production while ensuring continued language development; an approach to creating cross-linguistic connections through biliteracy instruction; a self-assessment tool for teachers to reflect on their pedagogical growth. Also applicable to CLIL and other forms of content-based language teaching.
