

SECURITIES LAW: OVERVIEW AND CONTEMPORARY ISSUES

Neal F. Newman* & Lawrence J. Trautman

Abstract

This is not your grandfather's SEC anymore. Rapid technological change has resulted in novel regulatory issues and challenges, as law and policy struggles to keep pace. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) reports that "the U.S. capital markets are the deepest, most dynamic, and most liquid in the world. They also have evolved to become increasingly fast and extraordinarily complex. It is our job to be responsive and innovative in the face of significant market developments and trends." With global markets increasingly interdependent and interconnected and, "as technological advancements and commercial developments have changed how our securities markets operate, our ability to remain an effective regulator requires us to continuously monitor the market environment and, as appropriate, adjust and modernize our expertise, rules, regulations, and oversight tools and activities." The success or failure of our society, jobs of a global workplace, and the ability of families everywhere to feed, clothe, and house themselves depends on the success of the SEC in providing fair and open access to capital through efficient markets.

Our paper proceeds in eight parts. First, we explain the genesis and role of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Second, the definition of and what exactly constitutes a "security" is provided. Third, the securities issuance process is discussed. Fourth, we focus our discussion on The Division of Enforcement. Fifth, we discuss corporate governance and the SEC. Sixth, we explore the difficult task of governing during times of rapid technological change. Seventh, we examine contemporary issues that face the Commission. And last, we conclude.

Keywords: blockchain, board of directors, corporate governance, corporation finance, cybersecurity, D&O insurance, economic and risk analysis, enforcement, environmental, social, and governance (ESG), examinations, financial markets, FCPA, GameStop, Howey, innovation, investment management, Koskot, registration, regulation, Robinhood, trading and markets, United Housing, virtual currencies.

Economic Regulation:Dispute Resolution Through International Commercial Arbitration Mahmood

Bagheri,2000-12-06 The growth of national economic regulation and the process of globalisation increasingly expose international transactions to an array of regulations from different jurisdictions These developments often contribute to widespread international contractual failures when parties claim the incompatibility of their contractual obligations with regulatory laws The author challenges conventional means of dispute resolution and argues for an interdisciplinary approach whereby disciplines such as international economic law conflict of laws contract law and economic regulations are functionally united to resolve international and multifaceted regulatory disputes He identifies the normative foundation of contract law as an important determinant in this process contending that contract law is essentially neutral and underpinned by the concept of corrective justice while economic regulations are mainly prompted by distributive justice Applying this corrective distributive justice dichotomy to international contracts the author critically assesses major conflict of laws approaches such as proper law the Rome Convention and governmental interest analysis which could disregard either public interest or private rights The author taking these theories into account proposes an alternative two dimensional interest analysis approach He tests the viability of this approach with reference to arbitral awards and court decisions in various jurisdictions and concludes that it uniquely fits into the structure of international commercial arbitration In adopting this approach arbitrators would take into account both corrective and distributive justice and to the extent that corrective justice prevails would be able to avert a total failure of the contract

Securities Regulation in China Zhu Sanzhu,2021-10-01 A co publication with Simmonds and Hill In this important study Dr Zhu Sanzhu offers a thorough account of the tortuous passage of China from an experimental securities market subject to regional and local or ministerial regulation to a full fledged national securities law China has conducted its securities experiments within a limited private and quasi private sector not linking them as has been true in Central and Eastern Europe to the rapid privatisation of the instruments and means of production The capital markets in China are for certain actors in the economy a test of economic performance economic efficiency and public confidence Dr Zhu also provides a translation of the Securities Law of the People s Republic of China along with a glossary of Chinese terms This volume is an essential resource for all those engaging in business with China or studying the integration of the Chinese economy into the world community Published under the Transnational Publishers imprint
