Developing Londons Docklands Another Great Planning Disaster:

Developing London's Docklands Sue Brownill, 1990-10-28 London's Docklands has been described as the largest redevelopment area in Western Europe. This book tells the story of that redevelopment and by doing so examines a number of critical issues concerning the regeneration of urban areas. From the first dock closures in the early 70s the area has been the subject of various and competing plans. Since 1981 the London Docklands Development Corporation with its market led approach has been charged with regenerating the area. The ensuing developments and the conflict between local needs and commercial imperatives have ensured London's Docklands has never been far from the public eye. The development of Docklands is placed within the context of the changing nature of inner city and planning policy in the UK. The shifting balance between central and local government, the erosion of local democracy and the increasing emphasis on policies aimed at facilitating the role of private investment is illustrated by the various phases of the redevelopment of the area. The author's detailed account of the LDDC era focuses on the main features of market led regeneration: the encouragement of private investment through planning, transport and land policies as well as substantial public investment; the record on housing and employment; the impact on the local community; the response of local organisations and councils; and the alternatives proposed. As doing a Docklands is becoming increasingly fashionable in other areas of the UK and abroad, this book provides a timely analysis of the Docklands experience and points to some essential lessons and questions. This book will be useful for undergraduate courses on inner city policy and planning and also for those taking courses in urban studies, sociology, housing, urban geography and planning.

Reshaping Toronto's Waterfront Gene Desfor, Jennefer Laidley, 2011-01-01 Large scale development is once again putting Toronto's waterfront at the leading edge of change. As in other cities around the world, policymakers, planners and developers are envisioning the waterfront as a space of promise and a prime location for massive investments. Currently the waterfront is being marketed as a crucial territorial wedge for economic ascendancy in globally competitive urban areas. Reshaping Toronto's Waterfront analyses how and why problem spaces on the waterfront have become opportunity spaces during the past hundred and fifty years. Contributors with diverse areas of expertise illuminate processes of development and provide fresh analyses of the intermingling of nature and society as they appear in both physical forms and institutional arrangements which define and produce change. Reshaping Toronto's Waterfront is a fundamental resource for understanding the waterfront as a dynamic space that is neither fully tamed nor wholly uncontrolled.

Blazing the Neoliberal Trail Timothy P. R. Weaver, 2016-01-07 Blazing the Neoliberal Trail asks how and why urban policy and politics have become dominated over the past three decades by pro-market thinking. Drawing on extensive archival research, Timothy P. R. Weaver shows how elites became persuaded by neoliberal ideas and remade political institutions in their image.

Improving Societal Resilience to Disasters Funda Atun, 2014-04-28 This book documents the outcomes of a study designed to explore ways of increasing resilience in a complex city system against disasters by focusing on the transportation system in London A survey was undertaken comprising interviews with upper level decision makers as well as questionnaires to personnel in the field and the general public The results of this survey are presented together with a brief description of the past and current situation in the city with respect to transportation flood risk and other vulnerabilities The sources of problems in responding adequately to disasters are analyzed and important lessons drawn In particular it is explained how failures derive from insistence upon the application of written plans in preference over redefinition of strategies and priorities and how flexible systems represent a better approach to crisis situations The book will be of interest to all who are concerned with disaster planning and management and the societal response to disasters

British Urban Policy Rob Imrie,Huw Thomas,1999-06-22 This updated edition of British Urban Policy and the Urban Development Corporations provides a comprehensive account of the policies programmes and effects of one of the most controversial urban policy programmes ever brought to bear upon British cities The authors place the policies and practices of the urban development corporations UDCs in the wider sociopolitical context of evolving urban policy present case studies of eight UDCs and explore the legacies of the UDCs and the evolving framework for urban policy into the millennium

City, Capital and Water Patrick Malone,2013-09-05 The urban waterfront is widely regarded as a frontier of contemporary urban development attracting both investment and publicity City Capital and Water provides a detailed account of the redevelopment of urban waterfronts in nine cities around the world London Tokyo Kobe Osaka Hong Kong Sydney Toronto Dublin and Amsterdam The case studies cover different frameworks for development in terms of the role of planning approaches to financing partnership agreements state sponsorship and development profits The analysis also demonstrates the effects of economic globalization deregulation the marginalization of planning and the manipulation of development processes by property and political interests

London Docklands Elizabeth Williamson,Nikolaus Pevsner,Malcolm Tucker,1998 Throughout the world in the last thirty years docks have been closed and docklands redeveloped This book focuses on London s docklands regenerated since 1981 with the help of the London Docklands Development Corporation

Reimagining the Pariah City William J. V. Neill,Diana S. Fitzsimons,Brendan Murtagh,1995 This book examines the pressure that politicians policy makers and planners are under in Detroit and Belfast to put image building at the centre of urban development The book also considers the consequences of such pressures The heightened importance of image generally nowadays in the formulation of development agendas is discussed before a focus on two worst case scenarios Detroit as the natural selection by Hollywood for the urban nightmare Robocop films and Belfast which is frequently bracketed together with Beirut by the international media Image mobilization through physical planning which in Detroit dates back to the Renaissance Centre of Henry Ford in the early seventies and which in Belfast dates from the revival of the city centre in the eighties is set in the context of the wider economic and political environment in both divided regions

The Changing City James Simmie, 2002 Accommodating High-density Development at King's Cross Railway Lands Trent Gary Greenan, 2002 Planning the Twentieth-Century City Stephen V. Ward, 2002-04-03 This book reveals the complex interplay of planning ideas and practices between local national and international levels throughout this century The book moves from German zoning the aesthetics of grand urban and landscape design from France and the USA and the utopian English idea of the garden city through to the dynamism of the Asian tiger cities and the environmental ideology of the late 20th century It creates an international body of knowledge and expertise With case material from major cities in Western Europe North America Australia and Asia this book charts the changing centres of influence in planning and identifies the cities which will lead the way in the next century The Planner , 1992 Current Issues in Planning Sylvia Trench, 1990 The aim of this book is to give both the professional planner and the student a feel for the current arguments alive in planning policy circles and to introduce relevant contemporary research This book has developed out of a series of seminars run at the Institute of Planning Studies at Nottingham University as part of its Continuing Professional Development Programme Each of the seminars brought together a variety of speakers who were involved with the topic under discussion from a different aspect some with academic research experience and others with practical policy implementation Most of the contributors presented papers at a series of seminars but some have been rewritten others substantially revised and several have been commissioned especially for this book Five current policy issues are examined Urban congestion and pollution is road pricing the answer Traffic calming in theory and practice Single tier local government Urban regeneration and Greening planning For each topic contributors were chosen who could approach the problem from a different point of view the aim being to explore each topic with direct statements and straightforward arguments leading therefore to a more stimulating breadth of this view rather than a bland overview BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Environment & Planning A. , 1997-07 Historical Dictionary of United Kingdom Kenneth John Panton, Keith A.
