

TEACHING STYLES

Teaching styles refer to the various methods and approaches that educators use to impart knowledge, skills, and values to their students.

TYPES

The simplest way to differentiate between teaching styles is to compare student-centered to teacher-centered:

- Student-centered teaching focuses on the student and their needs.
- Teacher-centered teaching puts the teacher center stage.

EXAMPLES

- Facilitator: a student-centered teacher who observes and supports students as they learn through the use of prompting questions or strategic interventions.
- Delegator: a student-centered teacher who delegates task roles to students, who often work in groups to achieve their goals.

Developing Teaching Style In Adult Education:

Developing Teaching Style in Adult Education Joe E. Heimlich, Emmalou Norland, 1994-09-05 Presenting numerous activities for both individuals and groups designed to foster self knowledge and growth in teaching the authors examine the primary elements of the teaching learning exchange They explain how teaching style is developed and they suggest specific approaches for matching methods to style Valuable special resources including scales for measuring beliefs and values about teaching help describe individual teaching styles The need is increasing exponentially for adult education delivered in a wide range of forms by a variety of educators Traditionally trained teachers of adults may soon become the minority as lay persons fill the growing demand for adult educators In order to succeed and improve as teachers it is imperative that these newcomers as well as their professionally trained colleagues examine their own beliefs and attitudes toward teaching and learning and use the information to develop teaching styles suited to their own personalities This book provides adult educators in all settings university extension literacy programs religious adult education business and government training and others with the tools to develop a road map for exploring reflecting and growing as teachers Resources in Education, 1983 Otto E. Miller, Plaintiff-Respondent, Against Fred W. Smythe, Defendant-Appellant, International Encyclopedia of Adult Education and Training Albert Tuijnman, 1996 This Encyclopedia deals with the financing and organization of adult education and continuing vocational training throughout the world The volume provides extensive coverage of lifespan development cognition adult learning and theories and methods for the teaching of adults both now and in the future Adult education and continuing vocational training are no longer considered as two separate fields and their merge has provoked increased attention on theories and practice with particular focus on human resource development This new edition draws on articles in The International Encyclopedia of Education 2nd Edition described by Choice as being a premier resource when judged on virtually every criteria applied to a reference work all articles have been revised and updated Adult education has undergone tremendous changes over the past decade not only has expenditure and participation increased at a global level but the field itself has also matured Continuing vocational education and workplace learning have assumed increased significance and as a result several new topics for research on adult education have emerged The many changes in the field are reflected in this volume The entries will not only cover the important concepts and definitions in the field but offer a disciplinary perspective on its development Professional Development as Transformative Learning Patricia Cranton, 1996-03-15 Professional Development as Transformative Learning draws on recent scholarship in adult education to provide practical ideas for adult educators on how to stimulate and support their own development as educators and better understand the process of professional development as adult learning Building on the work of Mezirow Brookfield and other contemporary theorists Patricia Cranton creates a practical personal approach to educator development one that is self directed reflective and transformative Throughout the book Cranton offers examples of her strategies in action showing how adult educators in a variety of settings can use these techniques to improve their skills and practice Resources in Education, 1996

Analysis of Teaching Styles, Adult Learning Theories, and Factors Influencing Teaching Style Preferences in Adult Education Instructors Beatrice Chemaiyo Lele, 2020 The teacher is the most influential and important variable in the classroom for student achievement Therefore the need for teachers to identify and utilize best teaching practices is fundamental to a progressing society Despite the literature advocating and proposing the student centered approach as the preferred method of teaching in adult education most empirical studies indicate that teachers employed the traditional teacher centered approach The purpose of this study was to examine the teaching style preferences of adult education instructors and the influence of gender age participation in professional development in adult education years of teaching experience teaching subject and levels of education on teaching style preferences A quantitative survey research design was used in which a two part survey was utilized to collect data from the teachers The first part of the survey was developed by the researcher to gather personal information about the teachers while the second part of the questionnaire utilized the unmodified Principles of Adult Learning Scale PALS The data used for this study was collected from N 67 adult education instructors The data were analyzed using descriptive statistics independent samples t tests and one way ANOVA The dependent variables were the total scores on the PALS and the total scores of the seven PALS factors The independent variables were the demographic variables of gender age educational level years of teaching experience professional development and teaching subject program The results from the study showed that most of the teachers n 49 scored below the norm mean teacher centered as determined by the mean scores of PALS Also the results of the seven PALS factors revealed mixed method use of both teacher and student centered approaches but a strong inclination to teacher centered The independent samples t tests results showed that there was no difference in teaching style preferences between male and female teachers and among those with different levels of education The ANOVA results revealed a significant relationship between teaching style and the demographic factors of age years of teaching experience and the teaching subject In the age category there was a significant difference in Participation in the Learning Process factor In the category of years of teaching experience there was a significant difference in the total PALS score In the teaching subject category there was a significant difference in Relating to Experience factor There was no significant difference in teaching style and participation in professional development in adult education The lack of differences and relationships in some of the factors and variables may be attributed to the sample size used in the study
