Developing Helping Skills Valerie Nash Chang, Sheryn Thompson Scott, Carol L. Decker, 2013 Developing Helping Skills Valerie Nash Chang, Carol Decker, Sheryn Thompson Scott, 2012-02-01 Chang Scott and Decker's multilayered teaching and learning system presents a creative blend of learning methods and clear presentation of topics to help students think like practitioners and apply foundational skills to real world practice. Students first read about professional practice and the skills required to work effectively with clients. Students then think and write about the ideas and concepts presented in the text by completing homework exercises following each new concept. Next, students watch and discuss the accompanying DVD available for packaging with the text which demonstrates how to use the skills covered in the text with an individual family or group. Furthermore, the text's modified case-based method introduces a continuing case one section at a time throughout the chapters which helps students learn how to think like professionals. Finally, exercises with specific directions for role playing the client, practitioner, and peer supervisor followed by a simple evaluation tool completed by the peer supervisor and practitioner promote practice and evaluation. Decker, 2017-01-01 Developing Helping Skills Valerie Nash Chang, Sheryn Thompson Scott, Carol L. Decker, 2008-01-01 Build your fundamental helping skills and more important the ability to transfer those skills to actual real world situations with the unique approach found in Chang Scott Decker's DEVELOPING HELPING SKILLS A STEP BY STEP APPROACH. These experienced authors have created a blend of learning methods and clear presentations throughout this text and integrated DVD that help readers at any level think like practitioners and appropriately apply foundational skills. Self assessment, critical thinking, and practice play a central role in the book's presentation as the text prepares professionals in training for generalist practice with individuals, families, and groups including entire communities and organizations. Whether you are preparing for social work, psychology, counseling, marriage and family therapy, pastoral counseling, human services, or a related helping profession, this unique book offers the fundamental knowledge and skills sets you need. The authors' multilayered learning system, unlike any other text on the market, integrates reading, discussion, observation, and visualization practice and evaluation. You begin by reading the text and completing the homework exercises that follow each new concept. You then view the accompanying DVD to see how to apply the skills in practice effectively. The text's case-based approach helps you think like a professional with a continuing case that is introduced one section at a time. Finally, role playing in practice interviews and completing evaluation tools allow you to assess progress and determine your personal readiness to apply your skills within actual life settings. Developing Helping Skills Valerie Nash Chang, Sheryn Scott, Carol Decker, 2011-12-02 Developing Helping Skills Maurice A. Developing Helping Skills in an Online Environment Jill Gomez,2012 There is minimal consensus on the pedagogy of teaching interpersonal skills to undergraduate students entering the helping professions This is problematic as many

bachelor level social workers and addiction counseling students have not consistently been taught interpersonal helping skills yet many will enter the workforce post program completion For those programs that have transitioned to online the question arises as to whether students can meet the learning objectives of skill training in an online environment The study examined students mastery of content knowledge of students and their helping skills based on Carkhuffs ratings of skills Another research goal is to process my teaching experience as the instructor who developed and taught the online course This study used a mixed method that utilizes pre and post test design and action research The t test of pre and post scores on knowledge and skills showed that there were significant differences on students skills The results from the action research data sources suggest that helping skills can be developed in an online environment when instruction includes a dynamic learning environment including sessions with modeling practice and feedback This study informs practitioners about the challenges with transferring skill based material to an online format and the technology challenges that must be managed to facilitate learning in this new environment
