E-Government Implementation and Practice in Developing Countries Mahmood, Zaigham, 2013-05-31 This book provides research on the current actions being taken by developing countries toward the design development and implementation of e government policies Provided by publisher Water, Environmental Security and Sustainable Rural Development Murat Arsel, Max Spoor, 2009-12-04 This co edited volume provides a unified scholarly treatment of intensifying debates on the relationship between water scarcity and environmental security in Central Eurasia Using discussions of sustainable rural development as its conceptual backdrop the chapters in this volume combine solid empirical investigation with critical analysis of key concepts such as scarcity expert knowledge and efficiency The central theme emerging from the contributions emphasizes the need to reevaluate accepted wisdom in resource studies that considers distributional conflicts over water usage as inherently zero sum outcomes in which one player's gains inevitably correspond to another player's losses. Instead, the empirical and critical analyses in this book demonstrate that effective management of water resources can be reconceptualized as the basis for regional cooperation and sustainable rural development.

Kazakhstan: Snow Leopard at the Crossroads Christopher Hartwell, 2023-05-10 This volume examines the experience of Kazakhstan's transition over the past 30 years, explaining the political and economic performance of the country since the collapse of the USSR through the country's institutions, policy choices, and external environment. In an exploration of more than 1,000 years of institutional development, the chapters analyse and assess the development of political arrangements and governance and economic institutions from pre-Russian colonization through to the Soviet experiment and then take a magnifying glass to developments in a post-Soviet independent Kazakhstan. Using a broad range of sources and data across disciplines, this book is the first to explicitly survey Kazakhstan's transition as a function of its history, its people, and its institutions. Breaking new ground in institutional economics, it provides readers with a comprehensive examination of the history and development of Kazakhstan and points to where it may be heading in the 21st century. The subject matter is accessible to a broad academic audience, to scholars in political science, economics, and the history of Central Asia and Russia, as well as to those with an interest in general transition economics.

Authoritarian Landscapes Steve Hess, 2013-03-02 The turbulent year of 2011 has brought the appearance of mass popular unrest and the collapse of long-lived autocratic regimes in Egypt, Tunisia, Libya, and possibly Syria. The sudden and unanticipated fall of these regimes, often thought of as exemplars of authoritarian resilience, has brought much of the conventional wisdom on the durability and vulnerability of nondemocratic regimes into question. This book seeks to advance the existing literature by treating the autocratic state not as a unitary actor characterized by strength or weakness but rather as a structure or terrain that can alternatively inhibit or facilitate the appearance of national-level forms of protests. In the mode of the Arab Spring, the color revolutions of the former Soviet Union, and the people power movement of the Philippines, such movements overcome the daunting impediments presented by autocrats, appeal to like-minded counterparts across society, and overwhelm the ability of regimes to maintain order. Conversely, in other settings such as contemporary China, decentralized state structures provide an inhospitable environment for national-level protest, leading collective actors to opt for more local and parochial forms of contention. This outcome produces paradoxical situations such as in the PRC, where protests are frequent but national-level mobilization and coordination is absent.
