Development And Culture Selected Essays From Development In Practice Development In Practice Readers Series:

Development and Culture Deborah Eade, Thierry G. Verhelst, Wendy Tyndale, 2002 Most development policies and interventions are based on an assumption that modernisation in the Western sense is the ultimate goal of human societies Culture is therefore regarded either as an impediment to progress or as something outside the economic and political spheres and consigned to areas of religion and ritual This collection of papers published in association with World Faiths Development Dialogue and written by a range of aid practitioners and scholars shows the need not merely to view culture as an important dimension of development but to see development itself as a cultural expression and culture as the basis upon which societies can develop through self renewal and growth

Interdisciplinary approaches to literacy and development Kaushik Basu, Bryan Maddox, Anna Robinson-Pant, 2013-09-13 The links between literacy and development have been the focus of research conducted by both economists and anthropologists Yet researchers from these different disciplines have tended to work in isolation from each other This book aims to create a space for new interdisciplinary debate in this area through bringing together contributions on literacy and development from the fields of education literacy studies anthropology and economics The book extends our theoretical understanding on the ways in which people s acquisition and uses of literacy influence changes in agency identity social practice and labour market and other outcomes The chapters discuss data from diverse cultural contexts South Africa Bangladesh India Nepal Peru and Mexico and from contrasting research paradigms The contributors examine the significance of culture and socio economic contexts in shaping such processes As such they contribute to our understanding of the role of literacy in processes of poverty reduction and its importance to people s capabilities and wellbeing The themes covered include the dynamics of literacy use in the production of agency the enactment negotiation and embodiment of new social identities including gendered and religious identities the impacts of literate identities and use on institutional relations and social participation the dynamics of literacy sharing and their externalities within and beyond households formal analysis of the impacts of proximate illiteracy on labour market and health outcomes across men and women and social contexts This book was published as a special issue of the Journal of Development Studies 2000, 36(4) 451-600

Feminist Futures Kum-Kum Bhavnani, John Foran, Priya A. Kurian, 2003 Feminist futures challenges established approaches to development which continue to privilege the politico economic aspects The collection argues for a new paradigm that places women and gender at the centre puts culture on a par with political economy and pays attention to critical practices pedagogies and movements for social justice This path breaking book should be required for those who are determined to create a more just world and to transform development into more than an empty practice designed to placate the poor in an increasingly unequal world
