

Development and Displacement: Women in Southeast Asia. Edited by GLEN CHANDLER, NORMA SULLIVAN, and JAN BRANSON. Monash Papers on Southeast Asia 18. Melbourne: Monash University, Centre of Southeast Asian Studies, 1988. iv, 136 pp. Aus. $14.00 (paper).

Researchers tend to emphasize the high status and economic autonomy of women in Southeast Asia, particularly when compared with South and East Asia. Women in Southeast Asia may fare better comparatively, but they still are subjected to patriarchal controls and inequality, a situation often glossed over by researchers. Perhaps precisely because of this ambiguity—considerable female autonomy, some patriarchal controls, and flexible kinship systems—relatively few studies have explored the contemporary position of women in Southeast Asia. This short book, based on a 1983 workshop in Melbourne, is generally critical of capitalist development, particularly its detrimental effects on women. Unfortunately, the book does not achieve its potential.

In one of the best contributions, Leslie O'Brien traces historical changes in the sexual division of labor in Malaya and Malaysia in her analysis of contemporary labor-force segmentation. In another important study Kathy Robinson analyzes the contradictory changes in gender relations among the Soroakans in Sulawesi, where Inco built a multinational mining project. Although women have gained some personal freedom, they depend increasingly on men, having lost their former prominent and equal role in agricultural production. Robinson is adept at underscoring the contradictions in this situation, but her Marxist analysis is often overdone and tiresome, with every act or movement somehow tied to capital or capitalism.

Rosalinda Pineda-Ofreneo sketches the far-reaching effects of the new international division of labor by focusing on subcontracting in the Philippines, an important topic rarely addressed. Sukanya Hantrakul describes women's position in Thailand, exploring the relationships among sexuality, prostitution, Buddhism, the state, and parental control over daughters. Jan Branson and Don Miller argue that Balinese women have been displaced from the market; although Branson and Miller are probably correct, their data are far too skimpy to be convincing.

Maila Stevens presents the unique and complex situation in Negeri Sembilan, Malaysia, where matrilineal practices (adat perpatih) were reconstituted under colonialism. Today women own all ancestral land and more than half the rubber land, challenging models in which women are solely viewed as exploited labor within the household. This chapter typifies some of the more general problems in the book—it is severely scarred from editing malpractice. Sections are hacked up and moved around arbitrarily, and subtitles are too generously slapped on, turning an interesting and important study into a choppy and discontinuous read.

The Marxist feminist approach taken by most authors in the book creates both its strengths and weaknesses. On the positive side, many authors approach the question of gender relations historically, not just with cross-sectional data. Contradictions in women's position are often emphasized, illustrating the complex and context-specific nature of capitalist growth. On the negative side, some authors engage in economic overdeterminism, which I believe is at fault for the extraordinary lack of words, voices, and quotations from the women who form the basis of this book. Robinson is the only author to integrate respondents into her chapter, and Stevens alone discusses women's responses to change in a way that does not render them simply passive victims of external forces.

The three coeditors (for six chapters) have badly mismanaged this book. Most authors attempt to provide historical, political, and socioeconomic background for the Development and Displacement Glen Chandler, Norma Sullivan, Jan Branson, 1988 The Sociology of Southeast Asia Victor T. King, 2008 One of the main problems faced by teachers and students who have a scholarly interest in Southeast Asia is the lack of general user friendly texts in the social sciences The absence of an introduction to the sociology of Southeast Asia is especially unfortunate This volume attempts to meet these needs This is then the first sole authored introductory sociology text on Southeast Asia that focuses on change and development in the region provides an overview of the important sociological and political economy writings and considers the key concepts and themes in the field since 1945 Some multiauthored works do exist but these either are outdated or focus on specialized topics Aimed primarily at undergraduates up to the final year it will also be a useful reference work for post graduates and researchers who lack such a general work Southeast Asia Christoph Antweiler, 2004 Historical Companion to Postcolonial Literatures in English Prem Poddar, 2019-08-07 This is the first reference guide to the political cultural and economic histories that form the subject matter of postcolonial literatures written in English The focus of the Companion is principally on the histories of postcolonial literatures in the Anglophone world Africa the Middle East South Asia South east Asia Australia and New Zealand the Pacific the Caribbean and Canada There are also long entries discussing the literatures and histories of those further areas that have also claimed the title postcolonial notably Britain East Asia Ireland Latin America and the United States The Companion contains 220 entries written by 150 acknowledged scholars of postcolonial history and literature covers major events ideas movements and figures in postcolonial histories long regional survey essays on historiography and women s histories Each entry provides a summary of the historical event or topic and bibliographies of postcolonial literary works and histories Extensive cross references and indexes enable readers to locate particular literary texts in their relevant historical contexts as well as to discover related literary texts and histories in other regions with ease Materializing Thailand Penny Van Esterik, 2020-05-28 Thailand has become well known throughout the world for wonderful cuisine great package holidays sumptuous temples and textiles Noticeably absent from glossy tourist brochures but equally well known throughout the Western world is Thailand s seedier side the world of child exploitation rampant prostitution and AIDS Thailand maintains its appeal by slipping the ugly and painful out of sight and by promoting women as exotic visual icons through beauty contests state rituals and the sex trade This book explores the construction of gender in Thailand and in particular the role Bangkok plays in establishing gender relations for the whole of the country It examines the historical and cultural processes underlying Thai public culture including historical theme parks The author demonstrates how the materiality of the Thai world shapes gender relations and how Buddhism discourages essentialisms including fixed binary gender identities Throughout the book appearances are shown to be critically important and the essentialism of gender is maintained through display public presentations and everyday material practices Anyone wishing to understand the complexity of Thailand will find this book provides a highly readable and insightful analysis From Subjects to Citizens Lyn Parker, 2004-03-01 This book analyses the processes by which conservative and introverted Balinese villagers have been incorporated into the Indonesian nation state Women of Southeast Asia Penny Van Esterik, 1996 □□□□□□, 1989 Endangered Relations Chris Lyttleton, 2000-01-10 HIV and AIDS are having a profound impact on contemporary life in Thailand generating complex issues with far reaching implications for both the Thai people and on a global level AIDS has become an increasingly prominent symbol of modernity in Thailand yet ways of dealing with AIDS and HIV draw on time honoured understandings of fate and misfortune disease and contagion gender and pollution Endangered Relations provides a crucial analysis of how public health has attempted to control the threat of HIV infection and how this has combined with local understandings of identity and sexuality it sets in place a broad range of personal and social responses to the ongoing epidemic An illuminating study of the way in which Thai social relations and in particular Thai sexualities shape the history of HIV and AIDS in Thailand Endangered Relations offers a unique perspective on the complicated ways that disease is negotiated in cultural political and human terms JCAS Symposium Series, 2000 Journal of the Asian Farming Systems Association, 1993 Women, Gender Relations, and Development in Thai Society Sally Theobald, 1997 Developing Human & Natural Resources, 2002 Women in Asia: Redefining working women Louise P. Edwards, Mina Roces, 2009 Volume III Health and Sexuality brings together the best and most influential scholarship on contentious themes such as the increasing imbalance in sex ratios in the region as a result of female infanticide sex selective abortions and the kidnapping of wives Research gathered in this volume also covers reproductive health violence against women e g female genital mutilation dowry burnings and honour killings same sex attraction and diverse gender identity and medicine and health care including work on traditional medicine and mental health problems specific to women in the region such as the high suicide rates in China and South Asia The material collected in Volume IV Constructions of the Feminine focuses on women in the family e g gendered role expectations women in religion Western perceptions of Asian women e g stereotypes of passivity women in the arts and official discourses on the feminine such as the promotion by Asian governments of gender roles Women in Asia is fully indexed and each of the four volumes has a comprehensive introduction newly written by the editors which provides extended reading lists and places the material in its historical and intellectual context It is an essential work of reference and is destined to be valued by scholars and students as well as policy makers and community activists as a vital one stop research resource Genders & Sexualities in Modern Thailand Peter A. Jackson, Nerida M. Cook, 1999 Many foreign observers of the Land of Smiles are familiar with a narrow range of gender relations and sexual practices in Thailand from the fanciful portrayal of 19th century harem life in The King and I to recent media coverage of sex tourism and AIDS Yet serious study of patterns of sexuality femininity and masculinity in Thailand is relatively new This book is a rare collection by scholars from around the world and across social disciplines who are tackling these issues The essays urge the reader to look beyond fantasies of Thailand as an oriental sexual paradise or land of sexploitation to historical and contemporary forms of gender and eroticism Studies of the changing opinions and practices among villagers and urbanites the creative expressions of novelists and aristocrats and the concerns of early women s magazines and recent AIDS prevention campaigns reveal the extraordinary diversity of debates about gender and sexual issues in 20th century Thailand Avoiding simplistic approaches to gender studies and sexuality research the authors discuss how interpretations of gender roles marriage and intimate relationships differ between men and women cultural regions Thai and immigrant Chinese communities and heterosexually and homosexually active groups as well as between residents of Thailand and their foreign observers By questioning accounts of Thailand as a place where gender is fluid and sexuality is free the book unravels the complex processes by which Thai men and women understand themselves appealing to both general readers and scholars of Thai society Peter A Jackson is fellow in Southeast Asian history at Australian National University Nerida M Cook is lecturer in sociology at the University of Tasmania Readings in Deviant Behavior Alex Thio, Thomas C. Calhoun, 1995 Rural Women C.A.B.
