Development Co-operation Review Series, 1997      The Rise of Japanese NGOs Kim D. Reimann, 2009-12-04

Looking at domestic politics transnational diffusion the state's relationship with civil society and societal actors the book demonstrates how and why NGOs active in global issues have become more visible in Japan and are now established players in the policy making process      Development Co-operation Efforts and Policies of the Members of the Development

Assistance Committee Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. Development Assistance Committee, 1996      The Domestic Politics of Foreign Aid Erik Lundsgaarde, 2013 This book explains the choices that states make concerning the volume of development aid they provide and what types of priorities are supported with this assistance The core argument of the book is that aid choices are a product of domestic politics in donor countries which involve a variety of actors that differ in character across the donor community      Aid to Africa Carol Lancaster, 1999-04-15 5

The United States      Aid to Africa Gordon Cumming, 2017-07-05 The end of the Cold War forced Western donors to rethink their aid relations with Africa This book looks at two of these donors France and Britain and asks whether the development programmes of these former colonial powers have undergone radical changes since the end of the Old World Order It focuses on the introduction of a controversial new regime trend political conditionality and uses policy models to illustrate the driving forces behind this new development strategy and explain substantial differences in France and Britain's practice of political conditionality in Togo and Kenya Overall this volume the first comparative study of French and British aid in the post Cold War period offers fresh insights into the evolution of the political assistance agenda and into deeper forces at work within the French and UK policy processes      Aid John Degenbol-Martinussen, Poul Engberg-Pedersen, 2003 This is the most comprehensive and up to date analysis of the global aid scene      The OECD Observer Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 1996      Improving Aid to Africa Nicolas Van de Walle, Timothy A. Johnston, 1996 As foreign aid flows decline and skepticism toward the effectiveness of aid to Africa grows a major reassessment of aid is needed While the ineffectiveness of aid to Africa is a long standing concern past studies typically have been driven by donor priorities and have rarely focused on recipient governments This neglect of the role of African governments is remarkable since aid constitutes 10 to 15 percent of GNP in many African countries and often represents over half of all public investment If the impact of official development assistance ODA is to be improved recipient governments must become more involved in the reform of aid This essay presents the policy findings of a collaborative project of field research and analyses of how African countries use aid resources and of donor African relations The widespread belief of free market economists and nongovernmental organizations that government is the problem and not part of the solution has become a self fulfilling prophesy in Africa writes van de Walle and Johnston donors must devote greater attention and resources to help build the capacity of African Governments to effectively manage aid even as they encourage the central state to retrench from nonessential functions The study assesses current donor practices and the impact of economic crisis on aid effectiveness in the region and it offers recommendations to promote management capacity focusing on the integration of aid resources in development management sectoral specialization and public dialogue on aid      International Books in Print ,1997
