A Dynamic Systems Approach of Adolescent Development E. Saskia Kunnen, 2011 Dynamic systems models are rapidly advancing the field of developmental psychology in particular adolescence by examining the processes of development alongside how adolescents change This book covers both the theoretical and technical principles for applying dynamic systems

A Dynamic Systems Approach to Adolescent Development Saskia Kunnen, 2012-12-06 The dynamic systems approach is a rapidly expanding advancement in the study of developmental research particularly in the domain of adolescent development It provides a unique way of examining the subject and this innovative study of developmental processes helps social scientists to translate dynamic systems conceptualizations into clear empirical research that readers will be able to implement themselves The first part of this edited book discusses techniques that describe and assess specific process characteristics such as variability sudden jumps and attractor states The second part explores the different techniques for building a dynamic systems model which can simulate the behaviour of a system to investigate the mechanisms behind the processes Each chapter describes one technique and is based on a specific practical example of its application in adolescent development Step by step instructions for model building and examples of ready made models are provided on the website that belongs to the book www.psyppress.com dynamic systems approach This book provides a clear step by step description of theories and techniques that are designed for the study of developmental processes and is therefore ideal for researchers of developmental psychology who do not specialise in statistics or research methods Pathways Through Adolescence Lisa J. Crockett, Ann C.

Crouter, 2014-03-05 Adolescent researchers are increasingly aware that they must examine development both across time and across context To do so however requires new conceptualizations and methodological approaches to the study of development including attention to the pathways young people choose in adolescence and follow into adulthood This volume assembles work by key researchers in the field who are struggling to understand how developmental trajectories are constructed and maintained throughout the adolescent period A complete understanding of developmental pathways requires the recognition that adolescents social contexts family school neighborhood and or peer group are important influences on the choices they make at this developmental period Researchers have traditionally studied contexts in isolation rather than examining the interrelationships among contexts and their implications for adolescent development The present volume seeks to address this gap in the literature with attention given not only to the interrelationships among contexts for white middle class youth but also to these issues for minority adolescents in neighborhoods that vary in terms of access to resources It concludes with an examination of researcher community collaboration as a strategy to move communities toward a greater awareness of adolescent development and the problems facing youth in their community and as a means to promote potential avenues for policy change and intervention Development in Adolescence Harold Ellis Jones, University of California, Los Angeles. Institute of Child Welfare, 1943 Relationships in Adolescence John C. Coleman, 2022-12-29

Based on the study of a large number of young people ranging in age from eleven to seventeen Relationships in Adolescence originally published in 1974 proposes a new model of adolescent development described as the focal model which makes a valuable contribution to the greater understanding of adolescence for all who have contact with this age group The book contains an examination of three different approaches to adolescence an outline of the research project and a discussion of the empirical evidence concerning identity and self image heterosexual and parental relationships and large group situations Comparisons are made between age levels and between boys and girls with respect to the whole range of relationships and the evidence illustrates significant and at times dramatic differences between groups Of particular importance are some of the changes which occur with age such as the degree of conflict with parents and attitudes to sexuality Based on Dr Coleman's findings is his fresh focal model of adolescent development This model stresses the elements of growth and change in adolescence with special emphasis on the normal anxieties and conflicts that occur at different stages of the developmental period Today it can be read and enjoyed in its historical context Child & Adolescent Development Karen Owens, 2002

This chronologically organized child and adolescent development text features an integrative approach to the study of development with a distinguished emphasis on multi cultural issues Through this integrative framework Owens explores the dynamic interplay of psychological biological sociological and anthropological factors as they contribute to the developmental process Through this multi disciplinary lens Owens presents the major theories and research of the field and provides strong links to the application of these ideas to daily life and career Owens further expands the integrative theme to include a respectable and fair treatment of issues related to diversity and culture by integrating coverage throughout the text as well as through a separate chapter 2 This inclusiveness provides a uniquely modern scholarly and complete view of the child and adolescent development process Development in Adolescence Harold Ellis Jones,1941 Encyclopedia of Adolescence

These techniques find their theoretical foundation in holistic developmental systems theories in which notions of organization process dynamics interactions and transactions context and life course development are focal. The term person centered is used to contrast with the traditional emphasis on variables the term pattern centered is used to extend the principles of person centered approaches to other levels of analysis for example social context.
