The Development of Nomadism in Ancient Northeast Africa Karim Sadr, 1991 Nomadism was one of the most important strategies for survival and it is still the strategy of choice for many cultures in Africa and the Near East. Nomadism can be best understood through an examination of its origins by asking why and how nomadism emerged as a way of life.

The Development of Nomadism Karim Sadr, 1988 The Education of Nomadic Peoples Caroline Dyer, 2006-06-01 Educational provision for nomadic peoples is a highly complex as well as controversial and emotive issue. For centuries nomadic peoples educated their children by passing on from generation to generation the socio cultural and economic knowledge required to pursue their traditional occupations. But over the last few decades nomadic peoples have had to contend with rapid changes to their ways of life often as a consequence of global patterns of development that are highly unsympathetic to spatially mobile groups. The need to provide modern education for nomadic groups is evident and urgent to all those concerned with achieving Education For All yet how they can be included is highly controversial. This volume provides a series of international case studies prefaced by a comprehensive literature review and concluding with an end note drawing themes together that sets out key issues in relation to educational services for nomadic groups around the world.

Nomads in the Middle East , Ethnoarchaeology of the Kel Tadrart Tuareg Stefano Biagetti, 2014-07-19 This book focuses on the issues of resilience and variability of desert pastoralists explicitly challenging a set of traditional topics of the discourse around pastoralism in arid lands of the Old World. Based on a field research carried out on the Kel Tadrart Tuareg in Libya various facets of a surprisingly successful adaptation to an extremely arid environment are investigated. By means of an ethnoarchaeological approach explored are the Kel Tadrart interactions with natural resources the settlement patterns the campsite structures and the formation of the pastoral archaeological landscape focusing on variability and its causes. The resilience of the Kel Tadrart is the key to understand the reasons of their choice to stay and live in the almost rainless Acacus Mountains in spite of strong pressure to sedentarize in the neighboring oases. Through the collection of the interviews participant observation mapping of inhabited and abandoned campsites remote sensing and archival sources various and different Kel Tadrart strategies perceptions and material cultures are examined. This book fills an important gap in the ethnoarchaeological research in central Sahara and in the study of desert pastoralism. Desert lands are likely to increase over the next decades but our knowledge of human adaptations to these areas of the world is still patchy and generally biased by the idea that extremely arid lands are not suited for human occupation.
