Details in Australian Architecture Roger Pegrum, 1984 Details in Australian architecture Vol 1 Handbook of Research on Building Information Modeling and Construction Informatics: Concepts and Technologies Underwood, Jason, Isikdag, Umit, 2009-12-31 In recent years building information modeling has become a very active research area of construction informatics with investigation of ICT use within construction industry processes and organizations The Handbook of Research on Building Information Modeling and Construction Informatics Concepts and Technologies addresses the problems related to information integration and interoperability throughout the lifecycle of a building from feasibility and conceptual design through to demolition and recycling stages Containing research from leading international experts this Handbook of Research provides comprehensive coverage and definitions of the most important issues concepts trends and technologies within the field Ken Woolley Ken Woolley, The Canadian Architect, 1987 Architecture and Urbanism in the British Empire G. A. Bremner, 2016-10-13 Throughout today's postcolonial world buildings monuments parks streets avenues entire cities even remain as witness to Britain's once impressive if troubled imperial past These structures are a conspicuous and near inescapable reminder of that past and therefore the built heritage of Britain's former colonial empire is a fundamental part of how we negotiate our postcolonial identities often lying at the heart of social tension and debate over how that identity is best represented This volume provides an overview of the architectural and urban transformations that took place across the British Empire between the seventeenth and mid twentieth centuries Although much research has been carried out on architecture and urban planning in Britain's empire in recent decades no single comprehensive reference source exists The essays compiled here remedy this deficiency With its extensive chronological and regional coverage by leading scholars in the field this volume will quickly become a seminal text for those who study teach and research the relationship between empire and the built environment in the British context It provides an up to date account of past and current historiographical approaches toward the study of British imperial and colonial architecture and urbanism and will prove equally useful to those who study architecture and urbanism in other European imperial and transnational contexts The volume is divided in two main sections The first section deals with overarching thematic issues including building typologies major genres and periods of activity networks of expertise and the transmission of ideas the intersection between planning and politics as well as the architectural impact of empire on Britain itself The second section builds on the first by discussing these themes in relation to specific geographical regions teasing out the variations and continuities observable in context both practical and theoretical Architecture Today, 1996 Avery Index to Architectural Periodicals Avery Library, 1997 Le Corbusier in the Antipodes Antony Moulis, 2020-12-30 This book considers the architect Le Corbusier's encounters with Australia and New Zealand as a two way exchange showing the impact of his ideas and projects on architects of the region whilst also revealing counterinfluences on Le Corbusier in his post war career that were activated by his contacts Compiled from detailed archival research undertaken at the Fondation Le Corbusier Paris and nationally based archives Le Corbusier in the Antipodes brings together a set of episodes placing them in context with the history of modern art architecture and urbanism in 20th century Australia and New Zealand Key exchanges between Le Corbusier and others never before described are presented and analyzed including Le Corbusier's contact with Australian architect Harry Seidler at Chandigarh Le Corbusier's drawing of the plan of Adelaide in 1950 and his creative collaboration with Jorn Utzon on art for the Sydney Opera House This book also includes analysis of previously unseen Le Corbusier artworks which formed part of the Utzon family collection In reading these personal and contingent moments of encounter the book puts forward new ways of understanding the dissemination and mediation of Le Corbusier's ideas and their effects in post war Australia and New Zealand These antipodean contacts are set against the broader story of Le Corbusier's career questioning received interpretations of his design methods and current assumptions about the influence of his work in national contexts beyond Europe

Towards an Australian Architecture Harry Sowden, 1968 Towards An Australian Architecture is the first book to give a comprehensive view of the development of Australian architecture in our time and also to question the future The Editor Harry Sowden believes that there is a general lack of appreciation even interest in Australia and that there is a great need to create an awareness and an involvement in the whole concept of architectural environment The nineteen firms in this book are representative of those that the author feels are changing the face of Australian architecture These firms are turning their backs on stereotype styles or those copied from other countries and this book gives them the opportunity to communicate their ideas In photographing their work the Editor has avoided the usual stylized essentially illustrative method employed in architectural photography the meticulous full facade shots where people cars and other uncontrollable objects are rigidly excluded His philosophy is that the buildings should be photographed as they are seen and used in everyday life accidental elements such as cars and litter are essential in giving life and vitality to buildings This approach requires the highest sensitivity and imagination from the photographer and intelligence and imagination from the viewer from book jacket
