

They have put Voldemort and Harry face to face conveying the exact same expression to show throughout the whole of Harry's childhood his and Voldemort's life have been intertwined and now finally one of them will have to die so the other can live forever.

The close up of Harry Potter and Voldemort shows the determination in both of their eyes which conveys that they both need to win the battle to win. The delicate light around the wand shows that there is going to be a magical battle.

The fact that the elder wand is in the centre in between both of the characters mean that it is a significant object within the film. The fact that it clearly shows that Voldemort is holding the wand conveys that he is the more powerful one. The red blood shows that the battle is going to be bloody and tough. Also the flying bits of debris also show how much of a tough battle of the darkest wizard and the boy who lived will be.

Throughout the range of Harry Potter posters for the there is a in keeping colour scheme of grey blue and black which conveys that this film will not be bright and lively film it will be dark and murderous film. The black shadowing surrounding the poster conveys again how dark this film is going to be.

The header on this poster says 'IT ALL ENDS 7.15' as there is no need to put 'HARRY POTTER' as it is already such a well known world wide phenomenon that even people who have never watched the films before or read the books would still understand that it is the final film in the saga and will either mean Harry dies or Voldemort.

In very small writing at the bottom of the poster it says what cinemas it is in and the website of the movie. This is at the bottom very small as they do not want to take emphasis away from the picture of both Voldemort and Harry Potter. The fact that Voldemort is in the poster and it is such a close up conveys how much of a big character he is in the film.
