Exploring Academic Writing as Social Practice Michelle Bedeker, Tsediso Michael Makoelle, Syed Abdul Manan, 2025-10-26 This book poses a provocative question what happens when academic writing is imported not just as a skill set but as an ideology one that dictates whose knowledge counts which languages belong and how scholarly voice should sound Focusing on English medium instruction EMI universities in Central Asia the book reimagines academic writing as a social practice rooted in power identity and institutional histories Across chapters contributors examine how students and educators negotiate imported norms develop scholarly voice and contest epistemic hierarchies through feedback supervision and writing groups Rather than adopting global prescriptions the book foregrounds local pedagogies culturally embedded challenges and creative responses to writing in EMI university contexts As one of the first regionally grounded academic literacies volumes in Central Asia this book offers essential insights for scholars of writing development decolonial education and the politics of knowledge production in global higher education reform

What Could a University Be? Robert B. Gibbs, 2025-09-01 Students are not clients job seekers or consumers Their purpose is the pursuit of knowledge So why do universities largely restrict inquiry to professors and graduate students In What Could a University Be Robert Gibbs imagines a university focused on engaging students in research at all levels and across all faculties including professional schools Gibbs proposes a widely applicable model that reverses the traditional top down flow by teaching students how to conduct research and become knowledge creators rather than passive recipients His future university embraces different perspectives on what knowledge is and draws its research questions from the society around it What Could a University Be will change how readers understand teaching research the kinds of thinking in which students should engage and the role of the university in solving the many challenges of our time
