Threats of Force Francis Grimal, 2012-12-12 Despite recent attempts by scholars to examine the absolute prohibition of threats of force under Article 2 4 of the UN Charter threats remain a largely unchartered area in international law when compared with actual uses of force Adopting an interdisciplinary approach and utilising strategic literature and international relations theory this book examines the theoretical nature behind a threat of force which helps to inform and explain why and how the normative structure operates in the way that it does In addition to considering the normative rules regarding threats of force this book focuses heavily on understanding the theory of threats of force or threat theory Drawing on strategic studies for an insight into practical workings of international law the heart of the book examines whether international law or indeed the international community should distinguish between a threat of force which is little more than mere sabre rattling and one that is serious enough to send a state to DEFCON 1 Finally the book considers the point at which a state pursuing nuclear capabilities may breach Article 2 4 with particular reference to both North Korean and Iranian efforts to pursue nuclear technology This topical book will be of great interest not only to scholars and postgraduates in international law but also to academics and students in the fields of political science international relations and strategic studies
