Clinical Management Of Gastrointestinal Cancer:

Clinical Management of Gastrointestinal Cancer Jerome J. DeCosse, Paul Sherlock, 2012-12-06 Where do you begin to look for a recent authoritative article on the diagnosis or management of a particular malignancy The few general oncology textbooks are generally out of date Single papers in specialized journals are informative but seldom comprehensive these are more often preliminary reports on a very limited number of patients Certain general journals frequently publish good indepth reviews of cancer topics and published symposium lectures are often the best overviews available Unfortunately these reviews and supplements appear sporadically and the reader can never be sure when a topic of special interest will be covered Cancer Treatment and Research is a series of authoritative volumes which aim to meet this need It is an attempt to establish a critical mass of oncology literature covering virtually all oncology topics revised frequently to keep the coverage up to date easily available on a single library shelf or by a single personal sub scription We have approached the problem in the following fashion First by dividing the oncology literature into specific subdivisions such as lung cancer genitourinary cancer pediatric oncology etc Second by asking eminent authorities in each of these areas to edit a volume on the specific topic on an annual or biannual basis Each topic and tumor type is covered in a volume appearing frequently and predictably discussing current diagnosis staging markers all forms of treatment modalities basic biology and more Clinical

Paul H. Sugarbaker, 1991-10-31 Gastric cancer has been one of the great malignant scourges affecting man kind for as long as medical records have been kept Until operative resection pioneered by Bilioth and others became available no effective treatment was feasible and death from cancer was virtually inevitable Even with resection by total gastrectomy the chances of tumor eradication remained small Over recent years however the situation has been changing Some changes have resulted from better understanding of the disease early detection and better management techniques with applied clinical research but the reasons for other changes are poorly understood For example the incidence of gastric cancer is decreasing especially in westernized societies where it has fallen from one of the most common cancers to no longer being in the top five causes of cancer death Still it remains the number one killer of adult males in Japan and Korea Whether the reduced incidence in western societies is a result of dietary changes or methods of food preservation or some other reason is as yet uncertain Improvements in outcome have been reported from mass screening and early detection more refined techniques of establishing early diagnosis tumor type and tumor extent more radical surgical resection and resection at earlier stages of disease      Advanced Gastrointestinal Cancer

Nutrition in the Clinical Management of Disease Harry André Lee, John W. T. Dickerson, 1978      Management of the Patient with Cancer Thomas F. Nealon, 1976      Advanced Gastrointestinal Cancer/Clinical Management and Chemotherapy Charles G. Moertel, Richard J. Reitemeier, 1969      Guide to Therapeutic Oncology Patrick R. Bergevin, Johannes Blom, Douglass C. Tormey, 1979      Medical Principles and Practice, 1996      Adjuvant Therapy of Breast Cancer I. Craig Henderson, 1992-08-31

The results of randomized trials evaluating the use of early or adjuvant systemic treatment for patients with resectable breast cancer provide an eloquent rebuttal to those who would argue that we have made no progress in the treatment of cancer. Many of the tumors that we have been most successful in curing with chemotherapy and other newer forms of treatment are relatively uncommon. In contrast, breast cancer continues to be the single most common malignancy among women in the western world, is increasingly a cause of death throughout Asia and Third World countries, and remains one of the most substantial causes of cancer mortality worldwide. The use of mammography as a means of early detection has been shown to reduce breast cancer mortality by 25-35% among those populations in which it is utilized. The use of adjuvant systemic treatment in appropriate patients provides a similar and additional reduction in breast cancer mortality. Few subjects have been so systematically studied in the history of medicine, and it seems fair to conclude that the value to adjuvant systemic therapy in prolonging the lives of women with breast cancer is more firmly supported by empirical evidence than even the more conventional or primary treatments using various combinations of surgery and radiotherapy.
