Conventional Arms Control And European Security:

Conventional Arms Control And The Security Of Europe Uwe Nerlich,2019-04-12 This book is an outcome of the conference on Arms Control and Conventional Defense in Europe held in West Berlin in 1987 The discussion in the conference led to several conclusions regarding the prospects for conventional arms control A New Approach to Conventional Arms Control in Europe Samuel Charap,Alice Lynch,John J. Drennan,2021-09-30 Over 30 years after the end of the Cold War military tensions have returned to Europe Both the North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO and Russia are boosting their deployments in close proximity to one another and in multiple domains At the same time a host of new or dramatically improved conventional capabilities have been fielded introducing a significant level of uncertainty into the security environment Meanwhile political and military to military relations are at a post Cold War low with communication as the exception not the norm and the structure of interaction created by arms control and confidence and security building measures almost entirely collapsed Through a combination of interviews workshops and structured analysis on the causes of potential conflict the authors of this report outline new conventional arms control CAC measures to lower the risk of conflict in Europe Although it once served as a cornerstone of European security the current regional CAC regime is outdated and largely irrelevant to today s challenges Rather than starting with the existing agreements the authors begin with an investigation of the catalysts of possible conflict and build arms control policy options on that basis How might specific changes in behavior posture presence technology or capabilities and varying perceptions thereof drive conflict What capabilities or combination of capabilities are destabilizing and why And what CAC measures could be used to address these risks The authors use the answers to these questions to suggest a menu of options for a new CAC regime that could address the regional security challenges of the 21st century A New Approach to Conventional Arms Control in Europe Samuel Charap,2020 Over 30 years after the end of the Cold War military tensions have returned to Europe Both the North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO and Russia are boosting their deployments in close proximity to one another and in multiple domains At the same time a host of new or dramatically improved conventional capabilities have been fielded introducing a significant level of uncertainty into the security environment Meanwhile political and military to military relations are at a post Cold War low with communication as the exception not the norm and the structure of interaction created by arms control and confidence and security building measures almost entirely collapsed Through a combination of interviews workshops and structured analysis on the causes of potential conflict the authors of this report outline new conventional arms control CAC measures to lower the risk of conflict in Europe Although it once served as a cornerstone of European security the current regional CAC regime is outdated and largely irrelevant to today s challenges Rather than starting with the existing agreements the authors begin with an investigation of the catalysts of possible conflict and build arms control policy options on that basis How might specific changes in behavior posture presence technology or capabilities and varying perceptions thereof drive conflict What capabilities or combination of capabilities are destabilizing and why And what CAC measures could be used to address these risks The authors use the answers to these questions to suggest a menu of options for a new CAC regime that could address the regional security challenges of the 21st century Arms Control and Security: The Changing Role of Conventional Arms Control in Europe Kevin Wright, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2000 The aim of this text is to explore conventional arms control in Europe The early chapters provide a primarily historical perspective looking at the context foundations main provisions and institutional structure of the main agreements The later chapters explore the continuing and likely future roles of the OSCE and NATO in the arms control process The final chapters examine more contemporary developments by looking at the Adapted CFE Treaty and Vienna Documents agreed at the OSCE Istanbul Summit in November 1998 and the challenges posed to existing arrangements by the changing and emergent security threats that potentially face Europe Conventional Arms Control and European Security Jeffrey D. MacCausland, 1996 Prospects For Conventional Arms Control In Europe Joachim Krause, 2019-07-09 This study is an attempt to examine the political military and technical issues as well as the opportunities and pitfalls associated with conventional arms control in Europe providing a short outline of the developments that have led to the renewed interest in conventional arms control since 1985 Conventional Arms Control and European Security Jeffrey D. McCausland, Jeffrey McCausland, 1996 What role can conventional arms control play in the construction and consolidation of future European Security Taking both a long and short term perspective Colonel McCausland explores the question examining existing arms control measures in the light of proposed security structures Conventional Arms Control and Disarmament in Europe Douglas Hamlin, Canadian Institute for International Peace and Security, 1990 This paper sets out the issue of conventional force reductions in Europe as seen by a Canadian diplomat with long involvement in arms control In a careful and balanced fashion it outlines the key factors governing the West's policies and indicates how they evolved especially during the Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions negotiations The paper focuses on the problems of surprise attack and geostrategic disparities between the two alliances and then sets out Western thinking on such questions as verification and the long term future of security in Europe Canada's particular interests in this field are mentioned and the paper concludes with an outline of the objectives that this country ought to pursue in the new Conventional Armed Forces in Europe negotiations Conventional Arms Control and East-West Security Institute for East-West Security Studies, 1989 This important and timely work prepared by the leading researchers planners and policymakers from both Eastern and Western alliances analyzes the major issues in the Vienna talks on conventional forces in Europe involving NATO and Warsaw Pact nations It is likely to have a significant influence on the course of these negotiations and on emerging debate on conventional arms control The contributors met in Moscow prior to the Vienna conference to review and compare their analyses and revised them thereafter for publication in this work Arms Control and European Security Committee on Atlantic

Studies,1989-09-25 In October 1987 on the eve of the Washington summit the Committee on Atlantic Studies a group of European and North American scholars established in 1964 to promote transatlantic dialogue met in Toronto to discuss the implications of the new arms control for European security This book is the fruit of that meeting Incorporating subsequent developments up to Gorbachev s December 1988 speech to the U N it provides a timely assessment of arms control issues from a variety of European and North American perspectives The contributors to this volume council caution suggesting that while progress is possible it will probably be slow At a time when arms control has arrived at a significant crossroads the issues raised in Arms Control and European Security are of critical importance to both Europeans and Americans This volume stresses the interplay of strategic and regional arms control It includes analyses of nuclear conventional and naval arms control questions and embodies a broader conception of arms control The book links arms control to such political measures as confidence building conflict avoidance and superpower agreement to the neutrality of particular states
