Intermediality and Media Change Juha Herkman, 2012 Abstract This book is about intermediality as an approach to analysing and understanding media change Intermediality and Media Change is critical of technological determinism that characterises new media discourse about the ongoing digitalization framed as a revolution and creating sharp contrasts between old and new media Intermediality instead emphasises paying attention to continuities between media of all types and privileges a comparative perspective on technological changes in media over time and space The concept of intermediality refers to interaction and interrelationships between media This focus is important in two ways It strengthens the mutual construction and articulation of media forms as a vital element of the research agenda In contrast to the emphasis on convergence it also permits the consideration of the parallel construction and articulation of specific features and identities that characterise a medium as well as the emergence of new divergences Intermediality and Media Change studies intermediality from both theoretical and empirical perspectives The book starts by positioning intermediality as a theory and a methodological approach The first group of articles focuses on critical reflection of media and mediation as concepts The second group deals with intermediality in discourses about media change The third group concentrates on analysis of representative cases and the fourth group focuses on media institutions and professions

Uncertainty of Communication Interpreting Global Social Media

Communication in a Way of Philosophy of Science Dong Chao,2021-05-26 This paper attempts to jump out of the original interpretation framework of social science and to explain new communication phenomena in a novel way of philosophy of science The paper believes that the development of the communication revolution especially the recent information technology revolution not only makes human being step into an advanced information society but also fundamentally changes the traditional communication methods So when traditional communication science is insufficient to interpret novel media phenomena using the philosophy of science to explain these new communication phenomena is not only feasible but also necessary This paper thinks that the so called philosophy of science is the product of transforming science knowledge into wisdom including not only the concept and methodology of natural science but also the humanistic understanding of modern science

Understanding Creative Users of ICTs

David Kurt Herold,Harmeet Sawhney,Leopoldina Fortunati,2013-09-13 The disjuncture between the design intent of the developers of ICTs and the needs of the users has often led to surprising use of new technologies as users have refused to become mere agents of the designers Individual users have adopted their own uses of ICTs based on the complex webs of relations and meanings in which they function as social actors Instead of adjusting these webs to new ICTs they have fit the ICTs into their pre existing social webs often resulting in imaginative and creative uses of new technologies not envisaged by the original designers The contributions in this volume provide studies of such integrations of ICTs into the lives of human users and demonstrate that such uses should not be regarded as faulty or mistaken merely because they fail to meet the expectations of the original designers of the ICTs Instead human users should be given precedence over ICTs and the creative uses of universal technologies by individual users should be emphasised and studied so as to move towards a better understanding and appreciation of the integration of ICTs into human lives This book was originally published as special issue of The Information Society
