A conversation with Merlin

These 32 exchanges between an illuminated man and his pupil, mark the passage of the student from his day-dream madness into a man, strong and gentle, of quality, substance and some very great account.

Motor Sales Co ,1962      Memoirs of the Life, Exile, and Conversations of the Emperor Napoleon Emmanuel-Auguste-Dieudonné comte de Las Cases,1890      The Price Of Courage Curt Anders,2015-11-06 A story of ground combat as viewed from the level of combat command The Price of Courage is written as it should be by a man who has himself led infantry forces in battle during the Korean War where combat reduced itself daily to the awful task of getting one man at a time around one rock at a time in the face of fierce inch by inch resistance Eric Holloway is assigned command of George Company on a cold and barren mountain when he least expects it and when in the minds of some of his men he least deserves it after a day of horror when his own blunders have cost American lives and frustrated the battalion s advance Under the grim pressure of necessity and in the face of bitter enemy fire he leads his battle weary company forward to take a mountain top With only his courage his instincts and his combat training to guide him Holloway must decide when to leave his post and risk his own life to lead a lost platoon to safety when to lay on the artillery preparation that may cost the life of one of his wounded officers when to bully an inexperienced lieutenant into moving forward under fire and when and if to ignore the orders of a chicken colonel who has had no combat experience The Price of Courage is an unusual book in many ways rough and plainspoken and unprettified without being larded with obscenity It portrays unrelentingly the horror and waste of war while celebrating the patient self sacrifice nobility and workaday heroism of the plain soldier giving a real experience of how it is to take men out on a cold and nameless mountainside to face death or disfigurement it is mature and unsentimental and unromantic and above all it is a simple fast moving well plotted story that moves in a clear straight line gripping the reader with the first sentence and nor releasing him until the final word Robert Smith     Teacher, Scholar, Mother Anna M.
