Lewis,2010-09-29 When we were children we made our own fun is a frequent comment from those who were children in pre television times But what games activities and amusements did children enjoy prior to the mid 1950s Recollections of older Canadians selections from writings by Canadian authors and letters written to the children s pages of agricultural publications indicate that for most children play was then as now an essential part of childhood Through play youngsters developed the physical mental and emotional skills that helped them cope with life and taught them to get along with other children In both rural and urban settings children were generally free to explore their environment They were sent outdoors to play by both parents and teachers Their games were generally self organized and physically active with domestic animals acting as important companions and playmates Children frequently made their own toys and equipment and since playing rather than winning was important most children were included in games Special days holidays and organizations for children and youth provided welcome breaks from daily routines Their lives were busy but there was always time for play always time for fun Norah Lewis has provided an entertaining view of the toys games and activities in Canada and pre confederate Newfoundland from approximately 1900 through 1955 Her book will be of interest to historians educators and sociologists as well as anyone who lived through or wants to know more about those early years in Canada and the games children used to play Canadian Books in Print. Caverns of the Cross Hal C. Sisson,1997 Caverns of the Cross is an intriguing rollercoaster of a novel that moves from the naked jungles of Brazil to the sacred halls of the Vatican In the midst of the Brazilian rainforest a Canadian scientist has been working on the development of a natural contraceptive distilled from South American flora The formula is finally complete and Naturcept is poised to revolutionize the way society perceives contraception and pregnancy But the individual company or group that controls Naturcept will be in a position to determine the course of society Pharmaceutical companies recognize that there is money to be made Sects within the Catholic church realizing that societal attitudes have changed are fighting among themselves to determine whether Naturcept should even be released into the hands of the faithful Whose hands the formula falls into depends on a complex web of murder and conspiracy those involved will stop at nothing to get what they want Pitting altruism against avarice under the powerful gaze of the Vatican Caverns of the Cross is a gripping and raucous
