How Do You Remote Jobs No Experience For Dads In America:

Cold War Workers Isabel Campbell, 2025-04-15 When Canada sought to protect its borders and aid its allies during the Cold War many people were recruited to build the emerging security state as construction and maintenance workers engineers members of the armed forces medical researchers and research subjects Security work transformed the lives of individuals families and communities in ways that were both predictable and surprising and both beneficial and harmful the militarization and colonization of Indigenous lives and lands was especially disruptive The opening essays of Cold War Workers intimately portray the complicated effects of Cold War labour upon Indigenous lives Elmer Sinclair a residential school survivor and member of the Canadian Armed Forces achieved equality with white men through his militarized masculinity His more positive professional experience contrasts with those of Indigenous workers on northern radar lines many of whom lost languages connections to the land and other elements of traditional cultures as they sought new skills and better employment Diverse Indigenous experiences of Cold War security work set the scene for the second set of essays which explore the impact of security preoccupations on marginalized groups the study of extreme isolation through scientific experimentation on human subjects the targeting of gay men with psychiatric labelling to enforce an idealized masculinity and the restriction of gender mobility in the Canadian military and the pushback from servicewomen Cold War Workers raises questions about the influence of settler colonial masculine institutional values on those who laboured for the Cold War state and society By comparing the experiences of different types of workers families and communities this volume reveals how race gender and privilege affected people in varied and sometimes unexpected ways

American Miller, 1884 Outdoor America, 1927 Free the Land Audrea Lim, 2024-06-25 An eye opening examination of how treating land as a source of profit has a massive impact on racial inequality and the housing gentrification and environmental crises Climate change gentrification racial inequity and corporate greed are some of the most urgent problems facing our society They are traditionally treated as unrelated issues but they all share a common root the commodification of land Environmental journalist Audrea Lim began to notice these connections a decade ago when she reported on the Native communities leading the fight against oil mining on their lands in the Canadian tar sands near her hometown of Calgary but before long she saw the essential role of land commodification and private ownership everywhere she looked in foreclosure racked suburbs and gentrifying cities like New York City among poor small farmers struggling to keep their businesses afloat and in low income communities attempting to resist mines and industrial development on their lands only to find that their voices counted less than those of shareholders living thousands of miles away Free The Land is a captivating and beautifully rendered look at the ways that our relationship to the land is the core cause of the most pressing justice issues in North America Lim expertly weaves together seemingly disparate themes into a unified theory of social justice describes how the land ownership system developed over the centuries and presents original reporting from a wide range of activists and policy makers to illustrate the profound impact it continues to have on our society today Ultimately this book offers a message of hope by approaching these socioeconomic issues holistically we can begin to imagine just alternatives to fossil fueled capitalism new ways to build community and a more sustainable equitable world
