

SOCIAL ORDER AND SOCIAL CONTROL

- What's the difference between the two?
- Social order assumes that the socialisation of individuals in society is a good thing, necessary for co-operation within the society. Social control ensures harmony and agreement within society. Without it there would be chaos.
- Social control focuses on the use of manipulation, force or punishment to make individuals conform to societies norms
- Essentially they explain the same thing but from two different perspectives

Control The Basis Of Social Order

James Pendleton Lichtenberger

Control The Basis Of Social Order:

Control: the Basis of Social Order Paul Sites, 1973 Monograph on sociology with particular reference to social control and political power discusses the most important social theories examines the impact of the socialization process on social structure analyses ideology culture and religion as parts of the control strategy and concludes that adequate social control and more equitable social stratification are the only means to reduce alienation in contemporary society References
