Counselling Skills and Knowledge for SCoPEd B Felicitas Rost, Naomi Moller, Tanya Frances, Claudine McFaul, Gina Di Malta, Hayley Ness, 2025-08-13. This text supports you to develop the counselling competencies aligned to the SCoPEd framework professional standards in Column B. It covers key competencies in client assessment, self-awareness and knowledge and skills with chapters on topics such as online counselling, working with unconscious and out of awareness processes, foundations of psychological assessment and using reflexivity in practice. The book further emphasises the importance of research with chapters on how to understand and evaluate quantitative and qualitative research and how both can enhance your practice. Throughout the authors foreground diversity-informed and culturally sensitive ways of working supporting you to adapt your skills and knowledge to meet your clients' needs. Each chapter includes learning features such as practice-relevant examples, key definitions and opportunities for reflection to support you on your learning and professional development journey.

The Handbook of Person-Centred Psychotherapy and Counselling Mick Cooper, Maureen O'Hara, Peter F. Schmid, 2013-05-31. Thoroughly updated to reflect the latest trends in theory and practice, this substantially revised and extended edition is the most in-depth and wide-ranging textbook available on person-centred psychotherapy and counselling. Divided into four parts, it examines the theoretical, philosophical and historical foundations of the person-centred approach, the fundamental principles of person-centred practice and applications of person-centred practice. How person-centred conceptualisations and practices can be applied to groups of clients who bring particular issues to therapy and finally professional issues for person-centred therapists such as ethics, supervision and training. Written by a diverse range of expert contributors unified by a more relational, ethics-based reading of person-centred theory and practice, this is a comprehensive cutting-edge resource for students on all advanced-level person-centred courses as well as for a wide range of professional practitioners in the field.

New to this Edition: A new introductory chapter looking at contemporary challenges and opportunities for growth for the person-centred world. Nine further new chapters including work with children and young people, older clients, arts-based therapies, addiction and bereavement, spiritual dimensions, contact and perception, working integratively, global and political implications. Increased use of text-learning features to make the chapters more accessible and engaging. A greater focus on actual practice with more case studies and examples of therapist-client dialogues. Increased reference to research. A general updating of all chapters to include all relevant references.

Person-Centred Counselling in Action Dave Mearns, Brian Thorne, 1988-10 This practical and comprehensive guide is written for counsellor trainers and their trainees as well as for counsellors already in practice wanting to familiarize themselves with the person centred approach to counselling Dave Mearns and Brian Thorne explain the theoretical principles of the person centred approach by relating these principles to actual practice Drawing on one particular case study the two counsellors present an extensive exploration of the core conditions of empathy acceptance and congruence and provide a step by step account of both the counsellor's and the client's experience of being involved in a trusting caring relationship characterised by power sharing and mutuality

The Dynamics of Power in Counselling and Psychotherapy Gillian Proctor, 2002 Given that people who are distressed often choose to go for help in therapy it is therapists duty and responsibility to deconstruct practices and to be clear about the ethics values and effects of the practices they use This book is based on the values and ethics of justice and responsibility to resist domination and totalising discourses

Theory and Practice of Counseling and Psychotherapy Gerald Corey, 2005 Covers the major concepts of counseling theories shows how to apply those theories in practice and helps readers learn to integrate the theories into an individualized counseling style Incorporating the thinking feeling and behaving dimensions of human experience Corey offers a text that helps compare and contrast the therapeutic models From publisher description Theory and Practice of Counselling & Therapy Richard Nelson-Jones,2001-03 A new edition of a highly regarded textbook that reviews the major theories of counselling and psychotherapy and explains their practical applications in working with individual clients Client-Centered and Experiential Psychotherapy in the 21st Century Jeanne C. Watson,Rhonda N. Goldman,Margaret S. Warner,2002 This book includes 39 papers presented at the International Conference on Client Centered and Experiential Psychotherapy held in Chicago in May 2000 This international collection of papers spanning theory and practice across classical client centred to experiential psychotherapy offers a rich diversity of thinking and opinion Systems of Psychotherapy James O. Prochaska,John C. . Norcross,1998-08 The Person-Centred Approach to Therapeutic Change Michael McMillan,2004-03-05 From the Foreword It is an honour to be asked to write a foreword for this new book by Michael McMillan I have been excited about this book ever since I read early drafts of its first two chapters some time ago at the birth of the project At different times thereafter I have read other parts and my consistent impression has been that this is an author who has both a sophisticated academic understanding of the material and a great skill in communicating that widely Those two qualities do not often go together The book is about change After a first chapter in which the author introduces us to the person centred concept of the person chapter two is devoted to the change process within the client including a very accessible description of Rogers process model Chapter three goes on to explore why and how change occurs in the human being while chapter four introduces the most up to date person centred theory in relation to the nature of the self concept and its changing process Chapters five and six explore why change occurs in therapy and the conditions that facilitate that change while chapter seven looks beyond the core conditions to focus on the particular quality of presence begging the question as to whether this is a transpersonal transcendental quality or an intense experiencing of the core conditions themselves This is an intensely modern book particularly in its postmodern emphasis Rogers is sometimes characterised as coming from modernist times but he can also be seen as one of the early post modernists in his emphasis on process more than outcome and relationship more than personal striving The modern nature of the book is also emphasised by a superb analysis of the relationship between focussing and person centred therapy in Chapter five linking also with Polanyi s notion of indwelling in this and other chapters In suggesting that in both focussing and person centred therapy the therapist is inviting the client to indwell himself or herself the author provides a framework for considering many modern perceptions of the approach including notions such as presence and relational depth Also the link with focussing is modern in the sense that the present World Association for the approach covers a fairly broad family including traditional person centred therapists experiential therapists focussing oriented therapists and process guiding therapists Important in this development is the kind of dialogue encouraged by the present book Dave Mearns Strathclyde University The belief that change occurs during the therapeutic process is central to all counselling and psychotherapy The Person Centred Approach to Therapeutic Change examines how change can be facilitated by the counsellor offering empathy unconditional positive regard and congruence The Person Centred Approach to Therapeutic Change outlines the main theoretical cornerstones of the person centred approach and then applying these describes why change occurs as a result of a person centred therapeutic encounter The author explores the counselling relationship as an environment in which clients can open themselves up to experiences they have previously found difficult to acknowledge and to move forward Integral to the person centred approach is Carl Rogers radical view that change should be seen as an ongoing process rather than an alteration from one fixed state to another In Rogers view psychological health is best achieved by the person who is able to remain in a state of continual change Such a person is open to all experiences and is therefore able to assimilate and adapt to new experiences whether good or bad By focusing explicitly on how change is theorized and facilitated in counselling this book goes to the heart of person centred theory and practice making it essential reading for trainees and practitioners alike The Psychologist ,2005
