From Authoritarianism to Consolidated Democracy in South Korea Jung-Kwan Cho, 2001 Consolidation of Democracy in South Korea? Gabriel Jonsson, 2014 Democratization and Democracy in South Korea, 1960–Present Hyug Baeg Im, 2020-08-14 This book analyses democratization and democracy in South Korea since 1960 The book starts with an analysis of the distinctive characteristics of bureaucratic authoritarianism and how democratic transition had been possible after inconclusive and protracted tug of war between authoritarian regime and democratic opposition It then goes on to explore what the opportunities and constraints to the new democracy are to be a consolidated democracy how new democracy had changed the industrial relations in the post transition period how premodern political culture such as Confucian patrimonialism and familism had obstructed democratic consolidation and the improvement of quality of democracy The author compares empirically from the perspective of a comparative political scientist political regime superiority of democracy over authoritarianism with regard to economic development He concludes that democratic incompetence theory has been proven wrong and in South Korea democracy has performed better than authoritarian regimes in terms of economic growth with equity employment distribution of income trade balance and inflation This book will benefit political scientists development economists labor economists religious sociologists military sociologists and historians focusing on East Asian history

Human Rights And Democratic Consolidation In South Korea Gabriel Jonsson, 2023-08-22 Has South Korea accomplished democratic consolidation since the Constitution was revised in 1987 Whereas political freedom has improved the NSL is generally pointed out as the main obstacle to full freedom but it is not the only one to guarantee respect for human rights Since full respect for human rights is not guaranteed democratic consolidation has not been achieved This book analyzes the issue based on the state of human rights that are an important part of democracy The starting points are the 1948 UN Universal Declaration of Human Rights the 1987 South Korean Constitution and the 2001 National Human Rights Commission NHRC Act which are empirically tested Definitions of democratic consolidation are applied The study first investiga tes legislation and human rights institutions including the National Security Law NSL the

Constitutional Court the NHRC adherence to international human rights law and the Universal Periodic Review Then the impact of inter Korean relations on human rights are reviewed based on the NSL dispatches of leaflets across the border and conscientious objectors Finally freedom of expression assembly and association including the state of sexual minorities trials of ex presidents death penalty human trafficking and torture are studied The Political Economy of Democratic

Jeannie Sung-Eun Cho, 2000 Consolidating Democracy Brendan Howe, 2022-11-21 This book assesses democratic resilience and challenges in relatively newly emerging democracies in the Asia Pacific which are simultaneously important case studies as newly emerging middle powers Across all dimensions and measurements South Korea and Indonesia are consistently the most salient case studies to consider The two case studies are compared across three sections First the relationship between economic development and democratic resilience in Indonesia and South Korea Second nature of political culture and societal constructs in the two case studies The final section looks at the potential peculiarities of the two case studies which are seen as uniquely challenged Indonesia by religious persecution and South Korea by political populism Certainly democratization is a long and difficult process This book provides insight into how the two countries have embarked on similar democratization projects It also delineates the successes and failures from which valuable lessons on democratization can be drawn Conference on Democratic Transition and Consolidation, 2002 International

Conference on Consolidating the Third Wave Democracies, 1995 The Politics Of Democratization In Korea

Sunhyuk Kim, 2000-11-15 What role did civil society play in Korea's recent democratization How does the Korean case compare with cases from other regions of the world What is the current status of Korean democratic consolidation What are the prospects for Korean democracy In December 1997 for the first time in the history of South Korea hereafter Korea an opposition candidate was elected to the presidency Korea became the first new democracy in Asia where a horizontal transfer of power occurred through the electoral process Sunhyuk Kim's study of democratization in Korea argues that the momentum for political change in Korea has consistently emanated from oppositional civil society rather than from the state He develops a civil society paradigm and utilizes Korea's three authoritarian breakdowns only two of which resulted in democratic transitions to illustrate the past and present influences of Korean civil society groups on authoritarian breakdowns democratic transitions and post transition democratic consolidations One of the first systematic attempts to apply a civil society framework to a democratizing country in East Asia The Politics of Democratization in Korea will be of use to political scientists and advanced undergraduate and graduate students working in comparative politics political theory East Asian politics and the politics of democratization Divergent Paths of Democratization Bum Suk Kim, 2001 This dissertation examines the patterns and causes of national differences of democratic development processes in Taiwan and South Korea I focus on three main tasks First I identify how the modes of transitions were different Second I examine why these different transition paths occurred by focus on the prior regime type political society and civil society Third I analyze the prospects for democratic consolidation First I argue that Taiwan s transition was a top down regime controlled slow elite dominated and unilaterally imposed transition Taiwan s transition was implemented from relatively strong and secure authoritarian regime rather than forced upon the regime by broad social mobilization On the contrary South Korean case was a bottom up mass ascendent fast and multilaterally compromised transition Extensive popular mobilization from below forced the regime elite to make a compromise with the opposition Second I argue that Taiwan s transition was caused by the quasi Leninist party state with no prior democratic experience and the weak political and civil society while South Korea s transition was caused by the military authoritarianism with prior democratic experiences and strong political and civil society In Taiwan there was no opposition party and elections were limited to local levels Moreover civil society was deeply penetrated by the KMT and the labor class was further weakened by decentralized industrial structures On the contrary in South Korea opposition parties were legally allowed to function and the elections were regularly held under authoritarian regime With prior democratic experience civil society was strong and the labor class was strengthened by the high degree of industrial concentration Finally following the path dependent approach I argue that the prospect for democratic consolidation is more complicated in Taiwan than in South Korea

Democratization and Globalization in Korea Chung-in Moon, Jongryn Mo, 1999 Curbing Corruption in Asia Jon S. T. Quah, 2003 This academic study examines how corruption is controlled in six Asian countries namely Hong Kong India Mongolia the Philippines Singapore and South Korea These countries illustrate between them three patterns of corruption control in Asian countries Pattern 1 is demonstrated by Mongolia which has anti corruption laws but no independent agency Pattern 2 is illustrated by India and the Philippines as they have many anti corruption laws and anti corruption agencies Pattern 3 refers to the implementation of anti corruption legislation by an independent anti corruption agency and is best exemplified by Singapore and Hong Kong South Korea has moved from Pattern 1 to Pattern 3 with the formation of the Korean Independent Commission against Corruption in 2002

Essays on Global Strategy and Institutions Jordan Ian Siegel, 2003 This thesis examines how firms in countries with weak governance institutions access outside technological and financial resources and capabilities The first essay challenges current views regarding the efficacy of renting foreign jurisdictions through cross listings and shows that reputational mechanisms are more important The second essay which follows a group of Korean firms through the sequence of liberalizations and political changes since 1987 provides further evidence that reputational mechanisms are central in obtaining external resources and capabilities The third essay suggests that Mexican firms selected alternative strategies besides cross listings before liberalization and that one of these strategies forming a cross border alliance turned out to be more effective The timing of liberalization is the key shift variable that determines which Mexican firms cross listed and which firms instead formed cross border alliances and or acquired political connectedness This thesis also demonstrates the complementarity of investing in domestic influence and the establishment of cross border strategic alliances
