

The Constitution Made Easy

4.3.2 Congress will have Power to sell or transfer the territory or other property belonging to the United States, and to make all necessary rules and regulations for them. But nothing in this Constitution may be interpreted in a way that it gives any State, or the United States, any preference concerning claims they may have.

Section 4

The United States will guarantee a Republican form of Government to every State in this Union, and will protect each of them from invasion. They will also be protected from domestic violence if the legislature of a State requests it. If the legislature cannot be convened, the Governor of that State may request it.

Article 5

Section 1

Amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in two different ways. The first way is for Congress to propose them whenever two-thirds of both Houses decide it is necessary. The second way is for the legislatures of two-thirds of the States to request it, and then Congress must call a convention for proposing amendments.

Section 2

There are also two different ways for the proposed amendments to receive final approval⁵⁵ and Congress will propose one. The first way is for three-fourths of the State legislatures to approve them. The second way is for conventions in three-fourths of the States to approve them. If they are approved, these Amendments will become an actual part of the Constitution.

Section 3

No Amendment may be made before the year 1808 which affects C:1.9.1 or 1.9.4 of this Constitution in any way. No State may ever be deprived of equal representation in the Senate without its consent.
