Construction Industry An International Comparison:

Building Chaos Gerhard Bosch, Peter Philips, 2002-11-07 This collection draws on international comparisons from the main industrialized countries in a key area the construction industry This genuinely internationally focused book has contributions from leading experts and academics in the field International Comparisons of Unemployment United States. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Constance Sorrentino, 1978 Accounting for Construction Rick Best, Jim Meikle, 2019-03-27 Accounting for Construction follows on from Measuring Construction edited by the same team It extends the coverage of some of the material in the first volume and expands the range of related topics to include inter alia shadow economies accounting for informal construction and the treatment of the built environment sector in national accounts Taken together the two volumes collate a range of topics that are only addressed if addressed at all in occasional academic papers and the publications of bodies such as national statistical offices and the World Bank Accounting for Construction presents international examples from the UK Australia and New Zealand and from both academic and professional contributors This book is essential reading for all researchers and professionals interested in construction economics construction management and anyone interested in how the construction industry affects the global economy in ways previously under represented in the literature Minimum Wages, Pay Equity, and Comparative Industrial Relations Damian Grimshaw, 2013 With growing concern about the conditions facing low wage workers and new challenges to traditional forms of labor market protection this book offers a timely analysis of the purpose and effectiveness of minimum wages in different European countries Building on original industry case studies the analysis goes beyond general debates about the relative merits of labor market regulation to reveal important national differences in the functioning of minimum wage systems and their integration within national models of industrial relations There is no universal position on minimum wage policy followed by governments and social partners Nor is it true that trade unions consistently support minimum wages and employers oppose them The evidence in this book shows that interests and objectives change over time and differ across industries and countries Investigating the pay bargaining strategies of unions and employers in cleaning security retail and construction this book's industry case studies show how minimum wage policy interacts with collective bargaining to produce different types of pay equity effects The analysis provides new findings of ripple effects shaped by trade union strategies and identifies key components of an egalitarian pay bargaining approach in social dialogue The lessons for policy are to embrace an interdisciplinary approach to minimum wage analysis to be mindful of the interconnections with the changing national systems of industrial relations and to interrogate the pay equity effects Measuring Construction Rick Best, Jim Meikle, 2015-04-17 Despite the size complexity and importance of the construction industry there has been little study to date which focuses on the challenge of drawing reliable conclusions from the available data The accuracy of industry reports has an impact on government policy the direction and outcomes of research and the practices of construction firms so confusion in this area can have far reaching consequences In response to this Measuring Construction looks at fundamental economic theories and concepts with respect to the construction industry and explains their merits and shortcomings sometimes by looking at real life examples Drawing on current research the contributors tackle industry performance productivity measurement construction in national accounts comparing international construction costs and prices comparing international productivity The scope of the book is international using data and publications from four continents and tackling head on the difficulties arising from measuring construction By addressing problems that arise everywhere from individual project documentation right up to national industrial accounts this much needed book can have an impact at every level of the industry It is essential reading for postgraduate construction students and researchers students of industrial economics construction economists and policy makers

Research Companion to Construction Economics Ofori, George, 2022-03-15 This innovative Research Companion considers the history nature and status of construction economics and its need for development as a field in order to be recognised as a distinct discipline It presents a state of the art review of construction economics identifying areas for further research

Research Handbook on Migration and Employment Guglielmo Meardi, 2024-07-05 This insightful Research Handbook presents a comprehensive overview of the core issues concerning the integration of migration and employment studies highlighting the interdisciplinary and global perspectives required to understand the complexity of labour migration

Routledge Handbook on Labour in Construction and Human Settlements Edmundo Werna, George Ofori, 2023-12-12 Routledge Handbook on Labour in Construction and Human Settlements presents a detailed and comprehensive examination of the relationship between labour and the built environment and synergises these critical focus areas in innovative ways This unrivalled edited collection of chapters analyses problems and presents possible solutions related to the employment and conditions of workers in the construction industry It provides comprehensive coverage of the relationship between the global workforce and the built environment and is divided into four topical areas how labour and the built environment relate to development employment generation in the built environment quality of employment in the built environment and the impact of the built environment on labour in other sectors Underpinning the entire book is the premise that the way the built environment is produced and its main products buildings cities and towns have an impact on large numbers of workers At the same time the quality of the built environment requires construction workers who are well trained and with good working conditions While cities and towns are the engines of economic growth they will not be able to fulfil their economic potential if poverty in the workforce is not addressed Those who are unemployed underemployed or work in unfavourable conditions cannot fully contribute to production and at the same time are limited in their ability to purchase goods and services therefore limiting economic growth and restricting improvements in their living standards In addition investments in infrastructure housing and inner city redevelopment cannot be sustainable if labour issues i e poverty are not addressed This book aims at analysing this complex set of issues comprehensively and will be essential reading to a wide range of researchers across the interdisciplinary intersections of construction business and management economic development urban studies sociology political science and project management

Building a World Class Construction Industry Mohammed Fadhil Dulaimi, 2001

The construction industry has developed an image of being the least developed sector of the economy in most countries. The industry is consistently being accused of failing its customers and providing products and services that do not meet expectations. The C21 steering committee has led a national review of the state of the construction industry in Singapore which was completed with the publication of the C21 report in October 1999. The report provided an analysis of the state of the industry and a set of recommendations. The committee set a vision for the construction industry for the 21st century to be a world class builder in the knowledge age. This study builds on the work of the C21 Steering Committee and working groups and the conclusions of the C21 report. The eight month study addresses the question of how Singapore's construction industry can change and improve itself. The study starts with a comparison of the C21 report with similar reviews in the UK and Australia. The main fundamental problems and challenges facing the construction industry are not unique but universal. The latest review in the UK which was one of several in the last 50 years was different as it was mainly client led. The Australian initiative was part of a national action agenda to improve the different sectors of the industry. This had an impact on the nature of the conclusions and recommendations. The study examined the impact of the C21 report on the construction industry. The study received and analysed survey responses from 200 companies involved in construction including clients, contractors, subcontractors, consultants, specialist contractors, suppliers and manufacturers. The study has established that the level of awareness of the C21 report is not high. Also the respondents provided only moderate support to the potential of the C21 to improve the state of the industry. Therefore the study strongly recommends a more effective dissemination program to inform the industry of the rationale and philosophies of C21. This program should include discussion forums and feedback on the barriers and enablers for greater improvements. The study has identified 12 key factors that are seen to impede the attempts of the industry to improve its business activities. The industry has collectively also identified the main problems to be client focus on the lowest price at the tendering stage and the narrow profit margins in construction business activities. However the different sectors in the industry expressed different views. The study then examined the C21 strategic thrusts and studied the possible enablers and motivators that would help the industry to achieve improvements under nine several categories. The study also explored the differing views in the different groupings. Upon closer examination of the results of the study one theme that underpins many of the potential solutions is that sustained improvement in a market driven economy can only be recognized by creating the market forces that would demand these improvements. Therefore the study recommends that an effective way to improve construction business is to adopt a market driven agenda for improvement aimed at delivering changes and improvements that are focused on providing better value products and services to the customer. A key to the achievement of this aim is for the clients of the construction industry led by the biggest among them to adopt practices that would facilitate this change and empower the industry to realize its potential Global Construction Data Stephen Gruneberg, 2019-08-12 Global construction data is vital for contractors governments international organisations policy makers academic researchers and statisticians As the global population of the world expands the sustainability of the built environment raises the political agenda and the need to manage infrastructure and buildings in both urban and rural contexts becomes ever more pressing How much more can the built environment grow and how can it be managed sustainably This edited volume addresses how we can find a possible way through the inconsistencies between national construction data sets to devise a consistent approach to national construction data to further the global sustainability agenda and inform policy making This search begins in Part I which looks at the methods and definitions used in construction statistics in different countries Part II considers examples of different types of construction data from the cost of materials measuring work on high rise buildings and existing stock In Part III the authors consider construction data internationally beginning with the problem of comparing data in different countries using exchange rates and purchasing power parities PPPs comparing innovation processes in different countries and looking at the provision of building design internationally In Part IV the international theme is continued by comparing accounting practices and company performance in different countries and concludes with an international comparison of construction industries This book raises awareness of the significance of the construction industry globally and the importance of data to measure it It informs the discussion of the best ways of handling the consequences of policies affecting the built environment and the effect of the built environment on the rest of the economy and society It is essential reading for international economists construction industry consultants policy makers construction statisticians and academics International Competitiveness of the Canadian Construction Industry Kirankumar Somchand Momaya, 1996 Emerging Trends in Civil Engineering K.
