Paul Peter, Jerry Corrie Olson, 1996 This work shows how the various elements of consumer analysis fit together in an integrated framework called the Wheel of Consumer Analysis Psychological social and behavioural theories are shown as useful for understanding consumers and developing more effective marketing strategies The aim is to enable students to develop skills in analyzing consumers from a marketing management perspective and in using this knowledge to develop and evaluate marketing strategies The text identifies three groups of concepts affect and cognition behaviour and the environment and shows how these they influence each other as well as marketing strategy The focus of the text is managerial with a distinctive emphasis on strategic issues and problems Cases and questions are included in each chapter Fundamentals of Marketing O. C. Ferrell, William M. Pride, 1982 Consumer Behaviour Satish Kumar Batra, Satish K. Batra; S.H.H. Kazmi, 2004-05 Without exception we are all consumers living in a society The single most important concern for marketers is to influence consumer behaviour in a desired manner Strategies used to accomplish this have implications for the concerned organisations the group of consumers they attempt to influence and the society in which such activities are undertaken The focus of this text is to acquaint management students with a usable managerial understanding and insight of our behaviour as consumers Students who aspire to become marketing managers brand managers sales managers or want to take up a career in advertising etc need to acquire knowledge and skills which would be critically useful to them in these careers The uncertainty involved in dealing with living breathing changing and stubborn consumers can be very frustrating What students have to learn and accept is that they would be dealing with a high degree of uncertainty understanding and applying consumer behaviour in developing strategies in their area of interest Successful application of consumer behaviour concepts to specific situations requires human judgement and cannot be reduced to any fixed rules Students often ask how can they use various concepts say social class personality life style etc to develop a promotional programme Obviously a single concept has to be thought and understood in conjunction with the knowledge and understanding of other factors while developing strategic options The text is comprehensive with relatively recent research inputs from scholars describing various behavioural concepts and theories that are believed to be fundamentally useful for developing an understanding of consumer behaviour Wherever possible to clarify the concepts it has been endeavoured to use nearer home Indian examples to make it more relevant to our conditions and easier for students to understand The book is arranged in five parts The end of each chapter is followed by summary questions for discussion and suitable projects At the end of each part there are cases and consumer insights Some of these cases relate to actual business situations while others have been prepared to highlight certain consumer behaviour concepts applied to specific business situations This book would be quite useful and will meet the requirements of students pursuing management studies and specialising in marketing Personal Selling Ronald B.
