Contemporary Clay and Museum Culture Christie Brown,Julian Stair,Clare Twomey,2016-06-17 This groundbreaking book is the first to provide a critical overview of the relationship between contemporary ceramics and curatorial practice in museum culture Ceramic objects form a major part of museum collections with connections to anthropology archaeology and other disciplines that engage with the cultural and social history of humankind In recent years museums have provided the impetus for cutting edge artistic practice either as a response to particular collections or as part of exhibitions But the question of how museums have staged contemporary ceramics and how ceramic artists respond to museum collections has not been the subject of published research to date This book examines how ceramic artists have over the last decade begun to animate museum collections in new ways and reflects on the impact that these new initiatives have had in the broad context of visual culture Ceramics in the Expanded Field is the culmination of a three year AHRC funded project and reflects its major findings It brings together leading international voices in the field of ceramics research undertaken throughout the project and papers delivered at the concluding conference By examining the benefits and constraints of interventions and the dialogue between ceramics and museological practice this book will bring focus to an area of museology that has not yet been theorized and will contribute to policy debates and art practice Contemporary Architects Ann Lee Morgan,Colin

Naylor,1987 To strengthen the contemporary focus of this volume we have added about forty architects and have deleted some whose activity ceased before World War II In making these decisions we have been assisted by an Advisory Board As in the first volume we have continued to define the word architect very broadly so as to include planners theorists structural engineers and landscape architects whose work seems to be central to the enterprise of creating habitable spaces in our day
