Beyond Ethics to Post-Ethics Peter Baofu, 2011-02-01 Is moral goodness really so desirable in the way that its proponents through the ages would like us to believe For instance in our time there is even this latest version of the popular moral idea shared by many when Dalai Lama suggested that we need these human values of compassion and affection Even without religion we have the capacity to promote these things WK 2009 The naivety of this popular moral idea can be contrasted with an opposing critical idea advocated not long ago by Sigmund Freud 1966 who once wrote that men are not gentle creatures who want to be loved and who at the most can defend themselves if they are attacked they are on the contrary creatures among whose instinctual endowments is to be reckoned a powerful share of aggressiveness As a result their neighbor is for them someone who tempts them to satisfy their aggressiveness on him to exploit his capacity for work without compensation to use him sexually without his consent to seize his possessions to humiliate him to cause him pain to torture and to kill him Homo homini lupus Contrary to the two opposing sides of this battle for the high moral ground morality and immorality are neither possible nor desirable to the extent that their respective ideologues would like us to believe But one should not misunderstand this challenge as a suggestion that ethics is a worthless field of study or that other fields of study related to ethics like political philosophy moral psychology social studies theology or even international relations should be dismissed Needless to stress neither of these two extreme views is reasonable either Instead this book provides an alternative better way to understand the nature of ethics especially in relation to morality and immorality while learning from different approaches in the literature but without favoring any one of them nor integrating them since they are not necessarily compatible with each other This book offers a new theory to transcend the existing approaches in the literature on ethics in a way not thought of before This seminal project is to fundamentally alter the way that we think about ethics from the combined perspectives of the mind nature society and culture with enormous implications for the human future and what I originally called its post human fate Program Evaluation Kenneth J.
