Considerations on Representative Government John Stuart Mill, 1861 The form of government for any given country being within certain definite conditions amenable to choice it is now to be considered by what test the choice should be directed what are the distinctive characteristics of the form of government best fitted to promote the interests of any given society

character commonly last and by successive aggregation constitute a polity suited to the people who possess it but which it would be vain to attempt to superinduce upon any people whose nature and circumstances had not spontaneously evolved it
