Leslie Smith, 1985 Critical Perspectives on the Organization and Improvement of Schooling Kenneth A. Sirotnik, Jeannie Oakes, 2012-12-06 Major paradigm shifts replacing one world view with another regarding what constitutes appropriate knowledge do not happen over night Centuries usually intervene in the process Even minor shifts admitting alternative world views into the domain of legitimate knowledge producing theory and practice require decades of controversy especially it seems to us in the field of education It has only been in the last 20 years or so that the educational research community has begun to accept the scientific credibility of the qualitative approaches to inquiry such as participant observation case study ethnography and the like In fact these methods with their long and distinguished philosophical traditions in phenomenology have really only come into their own within the last decade The critical perspective on generating and evaluating knowledge and practice what this book is mostly about is in many ways a radical departure from both the more traditional quantitative and qualitative perspectives The traditional approaches in fact are far more similar to one another than they are to the critical perspective This is the case in our view for one crucial reason Both the more quantitative empirical analytic and qualitative interpretive traditions share a fundamental epistemological commitment they both eschew ideology and human interests as explicit components in their paradigms of inquiry Ideology and human interests however are the bread and butter of a critical approach to inquiry Handbook of Rhetorical and Communication Theory Carroll C. Arnold, John Waite Bowers, 1984 Business Communications Ruth M. Walsh, Stanley J. Isaac E. Catt, 2017-09-22 Communicology is widely accepted on the international scene as a new name for the study of human communication It replaces several equivocal disciplinary conceptions such as communication which may fail to distinguish the science of communication from its object of investigation or the message centered communication studies which often obfuscates information exchange with the experience of shared meaning in human encounters

Communicology differs from the American mainstream social science of communication not only because it is grounded in communication theory rather than information theory but also because it advances a philosophically informed ecological perspective on human discourse This book is intended as a contribution to the philosophy of communication and the human science of communicology Semiotic phenomenology is thoroughly described as the synthetic logic that combines a philosophy of consciousness with a science of culture and conduct to explicate the lifeworld habitus Consciousness is viewed as cultural semiotic and experience as personal phenomenological This is a reciprocal reflexive relationship in which culture is conceived as consciousness of communication and communication the manifest experience of culture The book describes embodiment so conceived including the history of the matrix idea in American pragmatism and European philosophy as they commingled in the United States to produce a unique discipline of communication the science of embodied discourse

Important roots of this new discipline are described for the first time here in a unique synthesis of C S Peirce John Dewey Gregory Bateson and Pierre Bourdieu In addition the semiotic relativity hypothesis is argued to be an important implication of this new discipline Transcending the stale debate on language and thought the limited conception of linguistic relativity is considerably broadened and deepened The distinctive lifeworld of humans is argued to occur at the threshold of sign consciousness in the semiotic matrix of culture society person Semiotic phenomenology is not only a synthesis of two great European philosophical movements structuralism and phenomenology it is also the essence of American pragmatism This view culminates in the contemporary human science of communicology Communication in the Third World
