Communication Researchers And Policy Making:

Communication Researchers and Policy-making Sandra Braman, 2003 A sourcebook on the multiple relationships between the communication research and policy making communities over the last hundred years As the global information infrastructure evolves the field of communication has the opportunity to renew itself while addressing the urgent policy need for new ways of thinking and new data to think about Communication Researchers and Policy making examines diverse relationships between the communication research and policy communities over more than a century and the issues that arise out of those interactions The book provides primary material in the form of reports on such relationships spanning time periods subject matter policy issues decision making venues and governments The essays range from historical pieces on the importance of communication research since the beginning of systematic policy analysis and on the various roles that researchers can play to contemporary analyses of contributions of research to policy debates over network design and access media violence and advertising fraud Substantial interstitial essays by the editor explore the impact of the policy context on communication theories and research practices relationships between researchers and their institutional homes the role of communication researchers as public intellectuals and ways to maximize the impact of communication research on policy making during this period of infrastructural transformation The book includes an extensive bibliography

Research and Policy-making Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 1982

Foundations of Communications Policy Philip M. Napoli, 2001 Rapid changes in communication technologies are straining the existing system of electronic media regulation Despite the increasing pace of technological change the electronic media continue to be regulated under a well established set of guiding principles Principles such as the First Amendment the public interest the marketplace of ideas diversity competition localism and universal service continue to serve as the primary objectives for policymakers and as the focal points for contemporary policy controversies This volume focuses on these principles examining their underlying motivations and assumptions their central components their different interpretive approaches and their continued applicability in a rapidly changing electronic media environment Central to this book's analysis is the need for more thorough and rigorous application of these principles as tools for policy analysis rather than primarily as rhetorical devices for justifying policy outcomes Toward this end the book explicitly links each of these principles with communication policy analysis and illustrates how the dynamics of the policymaking process undermine the analytical utility of the foundation principles

Communications Research in Asia Sarath Amunugama, Abdul Rahman b. Mohd. Said, 1982

Mass Communication Research James Dermot Halloran, 1994 This book pays special tribute to Professor James D Halloran at his retirement after 18 years as president of the International Association for Mass Communication Research Each chapter is a succinct learning unit in the field of mass communications

Mass Communication Research Methods: Researching media institutions, organisations, professionals and production (continued). Political economy (media institutions). The political economy of communications Anders Hansen, 2009      Communications and Policy Making in Colombian Rural Development Susana Amaya, 1972      The Journal of International Communication, 2005      Networks, Knowledge Brokers, and the Public Policymaking Process Matthew S. Weber, Itzhak Yanovitzky, 2021-11-03 Social network analysis provides a meaningful lens for advancing a more nuanced understanding of the communication networks and practices that bring together policy advocates and practitioners in their day to day efforts to broker evidence into policymaking processes This book advances knowledge brokerage scholarship and methodology as applied to policymaking contexts focusing on the ways in which knowledge and research are utilized and go on to influence policy and practice decisions across domains including communication health and education There is a growing recognition that knowledge brokers key intermediaries have an important role in calling attention to research evidence that can facilitate the successful implementation of evidence informed policies and practices The chapters in this volume focus explicitly on the history of knowledge brokerage research in these contexts and the frameworks and methodologies that bridge these disparate domains The contributors to this volume offer useful typologies of knowledge brokerage and explicate the range of causal mechanisms that enable knowledge brokers influence on policymaking The work included in this volume responds to this emerging interest by comparing assessing and delineating social network approaches to knowledge brokerage across domains The book is a useful resource for students and scholars of social network analysis and policymaking including in health communication public policy and education policy      Linking Economic Research and Policy-making Joseph Hoffman, 1995      Communications Research in U.S. Universities Eleanor Blum, 1965      A Computerized Bibliography of Mass Communication Research, 1944-1964 Wayne A. Danielson, 1967      Social Science Research and Public Policy-making Denis B. P. Kallen, 1982      Science Policy Making in the United States and the Batavia Accelerator Anton G. Jachim, 1975 This case study of the allocation of a 200 BEV accelerator for use in high energy particle physics research to Batavia Illinois reveals the forces affecting national policy formation The allocation of a sizable portion of the federal Research and Development budget to one segment of the research community and the location of an expensive facility in a particular geographic region causes interaction among the elites in scientific and political leadership As a political scientist Jachim observed at first hand the interactions in the critical period of 1963 to 1967 when the Weston Accelerator the largest accelerator in the world which has just recently become operational was on people's minds His conclusions based on earlier models in the sociology of science will be of interest to citizens scientists and administrators concerned with the formulation and implementation of policy for science and technology      Communication in Congress David Whiteman, 1995 A powerful defense of original jurisprudence      IFG Policy Notes, 1980      Telecommunications Policy Research Bruce M. Owen, 1975      Public Communication and Behavior, 1989      The Media Revolution in America and in Western Europe Everett M. Rogers, Francis Balle, 1985 This step is a step toward greater internationalization of mass communication research Existing differences between the mass media of North American and Western European countries provide a basis for comparative analyses that illustrate how differences in national mass media systems can contribute towards intellectual understanding of communication behavior. The world of communication scholarship can be divided into two main schools: the empirical school and the critical school. This volume represents some of the leading scholars of each school and is dedicated to the intellectual merging of the schools by means of fostering an improved understanding of each other.
