David Johnson, 2013-09-12 Dosage A Guiding Principle for Health Communicators uses dosage as a metaphor to help all healthcare professionals apply basic communication principles to their work After a general overview of communication and its paramount importance in the health care setting J David Johnson a professor of communications and former media research analyst for the U S Information Agency and author of five previous books outlines the best practices for Interpersonal communication in health care relationships including that between physician and patient He answers questions such as How Much Do I Reveal and When Interprofessional teams including teamwork interdependence stress and burnout and communication in decision making Mass Media including searching for information and gaps in knowledge Knowledge diffusion and dissemination Change in communication including social media Health information technology and how to handle the flood of communications we receive today Johnson effectively expands his metaphor of dosage detailing its many elements amount frequency delivery system sequencing interaction with what other agents and contraindications as well as discussing the use and limits of metaphor generally He explicitly addresses the following contexts interpersonal communication with a focusing on health professional client interactions inter professional teams mass media that are increasingly important for broader approaches to public health how change is adopted and implemented within health care organizations and individuals and the new technologies for health communication The book's final chapter turns to broader policy issues raised by application of the metaphor of dosage as well as detailing its implications for methods of communication research It concludes with a discussion of how dosage can serve as a bridging metaphor to close the gap between researchers and practitioners which is fundamental to clinical and translational science

Seeking and Resisting Compliance Steven R Wilson, 2002-07-10 Why do individuals say what they do during everyday face to face influence interactions How do people seek or resist compliance in different relational institutional and cultural contexts Linking theory and research to salient real life examples and recent academic studies Steven Wilson introduces the reader to the theories systems of message analysis complexities and nuances of interpersonal persuasion Seeking and Resisting Compliance is the only single authored interdisciplinary text to explore compliance gaining and resistance from a message production perspective This incisive clearly written text is ideal for students scholars and anyone interested in interpersonal influence and persuasion in everyday interactions Recommended for graduate and upper level undergraduate courses in persuasion as well as special topics courses in interpersonal influence social psychology and sociolinguistics Features of this text Ground breaking specific focus on message production as opposed to only message effects Multiple theoretical perspectives are presented and the vast body of research from communication psychology linguistics philosophy and related fields is reviewed Student friendly pedagogy such as definitions examples and sections describing common assumptions about various theories engage students and highlight important concepts Steven Wilson currently is an Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies in the Department of Communication at Purdue University He is one of five associate editors for the interdisciplinary journal Personal Relationships and past chair of the International Communication Association's Interpersonal Communication division His research and teaching focus on interpersonal influence and message production in a variety of contexts from parent child interaction in abusive families to intercultural business negotiations He has published nearly forty articles and book chapters on these topics

The Talk of the Clinic G. H. Morris, Ronald J. Chenail, 2013-11-05 This collection of original papers by scholars who closely analyze the talk of the clinic features studies that were conceived with the aim of contributing to clinical practitioners insight about how their talk works No previous communication text has attempted to take such a practitioner sensitive posture with its research presentations Each chapter focuses on one or more performances that clinical practitioners in consort with their clients or colleagues must achieve with some regularity These speech acts are consequential for effective practice and sometimes present themselves as problematic Rather than calling for research to be simplified or reoriented in order for practitioners to understand it these authors interpret state of the art descriptive analysis for its practical import for clinicians Each contributor delves deeply into clinical practice and its wisdom therefore each is positioned to identify alternative clinical practices and techniques and to appreciate practitioners means of performing effectively When reflective practitioners encounter these new pieces of work productive alterations in how their work is done can be stimulated By reading this work reflective practitioners will now have new ways of considering their talk and new possibilities for speaking effectively The volume is uniquely constructed so as to engage in dialogue with these reflective practitioners as they struggle to articulate their work A practical wisdom as research trend has recently emerged in the clinical fields stimulating these practitioners to explore new and more informative ways communication and literary theory ethnography and discourse analysis to express what they do in clinics and hospitals With the studies presented in this book the editors build upon this dialectical process between practitioner and researcher thus helping this productive conversation to continue

Communication & Culture Alex S. Edelstein,Yōichi Itō,Hans Mathias Kepplinger,1989 One of the first integrated treatments of comparative communications research Early work in the field compared the uses of symbols by elite newspapers in different countries the different relationship between the journalist and public opinion and communication and modernization in different countries Edelstein traces the development of the major trends in the perspective and takes a critical look at recent ideas and methods
