

What do you need for successful community building? Here's what the research says . . .

How does a community increase its ability to work together, to problem-solve, to make group decisions?

Community Building: What Makes It Work shows you what really does (and doesn't) contribute to success. This practical report reveals twenty-eight keys to help you build community more effectively and efficiently.

Now you can save time looking for best-practice information. With this concise report, you've got the tools to help your community building work succeed!

You can use this report to:

- Find out what community characteristics contribute to successful community building
- Make sure key processes such as communications and technical assistance are in place
- Determine if community leaders or organizers have essential qualities such as a relationship of trust and flexibility
- Evaluate the likely success of a proposed project or get a struggling effort back on track

Examples, definitions, and a detailed bibliography make this report even more valuable

Wilder Research Center surveyed the literature, contacted resource centers, and spoke with community development experts across the country. The result is concrete, understandable research based on real-life experiences.

The twenty-eight factors in this report are grouped by: (1) characteristics of the community, (2) characteristics of the community building process, and (3) characteristics of community building organizers. Detailed descriptions and case examples of how each factor plays out are followed by practical questions you can use to assess your work.

In addition to the factors, you also get:

- Working definitions for community, community building, and many other terms
- A list of resources and contacts in the field
- An explanation of how the research was done
- A complete bibliography of all the studies used in this report

What people are saying about Community Building: What Makes It Work

"A lot of information in a short document—extremely important and appreciated, since none of us has enough time."

Carol Ogren, Associate County Administrator,
Hennepin County, Minnesota

"Rarely have we seen such a broad array of 'success' factors presented for community initiatives. Few overviews cover as many factors, and draw from as many cases."

Robert Giloth, Annie E. Casey Foundation, Baltimore

"Immensely useful!"

Tracy Curtis, Project Manager, Healthy Community
Information System, University of Texas at Dallas

"Makes abstract and hard-to-locate literature accessible. Provides a much-needed glossary of terms and offers practical steps for community building."

Peter Benson, Director, Search Institute, Minneapolis

"There is not enough written that is practical and nonacademic for the community building professional. This review fills an important need."

Harold Simon, Editor, Shefferforce, Orange, NJ

Community Building: What Makes It Work Paul W Mattessich., Wilder Research Center, 1997-06-15 This practical guide shows you what really does and doesn't contribute to community building success. It reveals 28 keys to help you build community more effectively and efficiently. You won't find another single report that pulls out common lessons from across community building initiatives about what works. You can use this report to find out what community characteristics contribute to successful community building, make sure key processes such as communications and technical assistance are in place, determine if community leaders or organizers have essential qualities such as a relationship of trust and flexibility, and evaluate the likely success of a proposed project or get a struggling effort back on track. Examples, definitions, and a detailed bibliography make this report even more valuable. Wilder Research Center scoured the literature, contacted resource centers, and spoke with community development experts across the country. The result is concrete, understandable research based on real life experiences. Creative Strategies for Conflict Management & Community Building Christian Ndubueze Anyanwu, 2009-11 This book, in applying the asset mapping theory of Kretzmann and McKnight (1993), developed a positive communication strategy for minimizing conflicts and building a more collaborative communities in organizations and churches with much emphasis on inclusivity, consensus, and commitment to common vision and ideals. While critically reviewing the traditional conflict theories in their approaches to conflict management, the book uses the new lens provided by the asset mapping theory to recommend for a paradigm shift in the way people look at organizations and conflicts. A new emphasis therefore is on the positive elements in organizations: the assets that lie within individuals and groups as the key to minimizing conflict in organizations. Besides, unlike the traditional conflict theories which see conflict as a problem, this new lens sees conflict within organizations as functional and opportunities for growth. The book equally identifies some of the significant factors that cause ethnic conflicts within organizations such as Prejudices among Ethnic Groups, Differences of Ethnic Groups, Power Struggle among Ethnic Groups, Discrimination and Injustice against Groups, Lack of Participatory Communication, and Lack of Participatory Leadership. Finally, in reviewing the relevant literatures on Community Building, the book underlines the various variables that make Community Building possible. Such variables include Discovering and Mobilizing the Assets of Individuals and Groups within Organizations, Building Relationships among

Individuals and Groups within Organizations Building a more Participatory Leadership within Organizations Building a more Participatory Communication within Organizations Creating more Awareness on the necessity of Collaborative Initiatives as well as Promoting the Common Cultural Values and Ideals that holds Individuals and Groups together within Organization
