

FOREST-BASED VALUE CHAINS

A NEW BIOECONOMY FOR THE AMAZON FOREST

Forest Trends partners with indigenous communities in Brazil's Tupi Mosaic to develop economic enterprises that promote forest conservation. We're building sustainable value chains for açai, artisan products, Brazil nuts, and cacao, and demonstrating the business model for native seeds and seedlings.

The "Amazon Bioeconomy" we are building mimics traditional Amazon management systems, creating a diversity of supply chains based on the incredible natural wealth of the region.

WE PROVIDE COMMUNITY SUPPORT THROUGH:

Connecting producers directly with buyers and product distribution channels, eliminating the common problem of middlemen who cut indigenous producers out of profits

Market assessment and engagement advice

Technical assistance and support for the adoption of "best practices" for forest management

Promoting opportunities for all community members, especially women and youth

Direct technical support in product development, marketing, business planning, technology, risk management, and certification/licensing

Connecting producers to seed funding or access to credit to start, grow, and/or improve business operations

FOREST-BASED VALUE CHAINS DELIVER:

- Increased community food security
- Increased detection and deterrence of illegal activities on their land, such as mining, logging, and fishing, among other threats
- Increased traditional knowledge sharing, especially between older and younger generations, as all work together to collect and manage forest products
- Increased long-term economic resilience

IN BRAZIL, WE'RE BUILDING SUSTAINABLE VALUE CHAINS FOR:

Açai

Brazil Nuts

Native Seeds & Seedlings

Artisan Products

Cacao

Kusel,2003 Across the United States people are developing new relationships with the forest ecosystems on which they supporters of what has come to be called community forestry are challenging current approaches to forest management as they seek to end the historical disfranchisement of communities and workers from forest management and the all too pervasive trends of long term disinvestment in ecosystems and human communities that have undermined the health of both Community Forestry in the United States is an analytically rigorous and historically informed assessment of this new Thomas M. Power,1996 Over the past two decades a growing consensus has emerged among Americans as to the importance of environmental quality Yet at the same time conflict over environmental issues has built to a point where rational discussion is often impossible Efforts to protect unique ecosystems and endangered wildlife are portrayed as threatening entire regions and ways of life and anti environmental groups such as the Wise Use Movement are able to use economic insecurity as a weapon in an ongoing attempt to rescind environmental protection measures In Lost Landscapes and Failed Economies economist Thomas Michael Power argues that the quality of the natural landscape is an essential part of a community s permanent economic base and need not be sacrificed in short term efforts to maintain employment levels in industries that are ultimately not sustainable He provides numerous case studies of the ranching mining and timber industries in a critical analysis of the role played by extractive industry in our communities In addition he looks at areas where environmental protection measures have been enacted and examines the impact of protected landscapes on local economies Both environmental protection and extractive industry are economic activities that can contribute to local economic well being Both generate jobs and income Both have a significant impact on people s lives Power exposes the fundamental flaws in the widely accepted view of the local economy built around the extractive model a model that overemphasizes the importance of extractive industries and assumes that people don t care where they live and that businesses don t care about the available labor supply By revealing the inadequacies of the extractive model he lays to rest fears that environmental protection will cause an imminent collapse of the community and puts economic tools in the hands of those working to protect their communities
