Rhumb Lines and Map Wars Mark Monmonier,2010-11-15 In Rhumb Lines and Map Wars Mark Monmonier offers an insightful richly illustrated account of the controversies surrounding Flemish cartographer Gerard Mercator's legacy. He takes us back to 1569 when Mercator announced a clever method of portraying the earth on a flat surface creating the first projection to take into account the earth's roundness. As Monmonier shows, mariners benefited most from Mercator's projection which allowed for easy navigation of the high seas with rhumb lines, clear cut routes with a constant compass bearing for true direction. But the projection's popularity among nineteenth century sailors led to its overuse, often in inappropriate non navigational ways for wall maps, world atlases and geopolitical propaganda. Because it distorts the proportionate size of countries, the Mercator map was criticized for inflating Europe and North America in a promotion of colonialism. In 1974 German historian Arno Peters proffered his own map on which countries were ostensibly drawn in true proportion to one another. In the ensuing map wars of the 1970s and 1980s, these dueling projections vied for public support with varying degrees of success. Widely acclaimed for his accessible intelligent books on maps and mapping, Monmonier here examines the uses and limitations of one of cartography's most significant innovations. With informed skepticism, he offers insightful interpretations of why well intentioned clerics and development advocates rallied around the Peters projection which flagrantly distorted the shape of Third World nations, why journalists covering the controversy ignored alternative world maps and other key issues, and how a few postmodern writers defended the Peters worldview with a self serving overstatement of the power of maps. Rhumb Lines and Map Wars is vintage Monmonier: historically rich, beautifully written and fully engaged with the issues of our time.

Rethinking the Power of Maps Denis Wood,2010-04-16 A contemporary follow up to the groundbreaking Power of Maps, this book takes a fresh look at what maps do, whose interests they serve and how they can be used in surprising creative and radical ways. Denis Wood describes how cartography facilitated the rise of the modern state and how maps continue to embody and project the interests of their creators. He demystifies the hidden assumptions of mapmaking and explores the promises and limitations of diverse counter mapping practices today. Thought provoking illustrations include U.S. Geological Survey maps, electoral and transportation maps and numerous examples of critical cartography, participatory GIS and map art.

Cognitive and Computational Aspects of Face Recognition Tim Valentine,2017-04-07 How can computers recognize faces? Why are caricatures of famous faces so easily recognized? Originally published in 1995, much of the previous research on face recognition had been phenomena driven. Recent empirical work together with the application of computational mathematical and statistical techniques have provided new ways of conceptualizing the information available in faces. These advances have led researchers to suggest that many phenomena can be explained by the structure of the information available in the population's of faces. This broad approach has drawn together a number of apparently disparate phenomena with a common theoretical basis including cross race recognition the distinctiveness of faces the production and recognition of caricatures and the determinants of facial attractiveness This title provides a state of the art review of the field at the time in which the authors use a wide variety of approaches What is common to all is that the authors base the accounts of the phenomena they study on their model of face recognition on the statistics of the information available in the population of faces On publication this title was a comprehensive up to date review of an important area of research in face recognition written by active researchers It includes contributions from mathematics computer science and neural network theory as well as psychology It is aimed at research workers and postgraduate students and will be of interest to cognitive psychologists and computer scientists interested in face recognition It will also be of interest to those working on neural network models of visual recognition perceptual development expertise in visual cognition as well as facial attractiveness and caricature Gender Issues in Work, Employment and Productivity
